

DE GAULLE TALKS TO U.S., BRITISH
ENVOYS ON SYRIA;
TO SEE RUSSIAN'Clear' Statement by Churchill on British Policy Expected—Tension in Levant State Continues.

LONDON, June 4 (AP)—Gen. Charles de Gaulle had long talks today with the British and American Ambassadors, and was expected to see the Soviet envoy on the Levant question, a dispatch from Paris said.

Prime Minister Churchill is expected to make a statement in the House of Commons this week "defining in clear terms" the attitude of the British Government on the situation in Syria and Lebanon, the Daily Mail said.

Damascus dispatches indicated that affairs in the Levant still were in a critical state, and British troops were kept constantly on the alert protecting the French in their barracks. French troops and families under British protection in Syrian towns were being evacuated, one dispatch said. In Kuneitra, south of Damascus, 4000 Bedouins of the Fadel tribe entered the town and wanted to attack French barracks, but the British intervened. At Hama other Bedouins kept the British on close watch. At Daraa, and Soueida the French were taken out under armed guard, and Damascus itself was under an 8 p. m. curfew rule. French barracks in the heart of the Syrian capital were reported about to be evacuated.

Press Criticize De Gaulle. Gen. Charles de Gaulle's proposal for an international conference to settle all Arab problems appeared to have done little to ease British-French tension. The London press chorused protest over the De Gaulle charge that British agents fomented agitation against France's Levantine interests.

The British Foreign Office has declined thus far to comment on De Gaulle's proposal. Newspapers, however, sharply criticized the suggestion. The Daily Telegraph said the statement deserved "severe censure," adding that the French chief should realize that disorders in the Levant "are quite as dangerous to British interests as to those of France."

The British Press Association declared that the main Allied concern was prosecuting the war against Japan, and protecting an Allied communication line.

The Yorkshire Post, controlled by the family of Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden's wife, dismissed De Gaulle's charge with a curt reference, saying "the Levant states must be treated as fully independent."

The Sunday Observer argued that De Gaulle's whole policy has been anti-British in a somewhat misguided effort to restore

PARLEY COMMITTEE OK'S
PLAN FOR PEACE BY FORCE

Approves Provision Giving Council Right to Try Peaceful Methods First, Then Invoke Armed Forces.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 4 (AP)—The hard core of a United Nations charter, the provision for efforts to end international disputes peacefully, was approved today by a United Nations conference committee.

Chairman Camillo Ponce of Ecuador said the committee had approved a charter chapter dealing with "determination of threats to the peace or acts of aggression and action with respect thereto."

Under it a compact, 11-member security council would serve as the instrument of a new world league in bringing unruly nations into line and preventing the eruption of war in the future.

It would be backed up by the military forces directed by the top military experts of great powers. To the security council would be given the right to determine the existence of "any threat to the peace, breach of the peace or act of aggression," and to adopt whatever measures are needed to "maintain or restore peace and security."

Before putting those measures into effect, it could call on disputants to comply with provisional, temporary recommendations to prevent aggravation of their controversy.

It could propose methods for bringing the dispute to amicable end—and all the United Nations are supposed to bind themselves to adjust their international differences peacefully.

Meanwhile, the United States is seeking some way out of the conference stalemate on the veto issue but without the slightest yielding on its own insistence that there must be no veto on the right of discussion in a world security council.

AMERICAN POLICE
HEADQUARTERS IN
BREMEN BLOWN UP

3 Yanks and 12 Germans
Killed, 80 Injured—
Blast Attributed to Time Bomb.

BREMEN, Germany, June 4 (AP)—Two explosions wrecked the U.S. military government's police headquarters in Bremen today, killing at least three Americans and 12 Germans and injuring 80 other persons.

An American public safety officer, Maj. E. Russell Kennedy Jr. of Washington, D.C., said he believed the blasts were caused "by a delayed-action bomb."

Incomplete military reports up to 5 p. m. listed the following casualties, besides the 15 dead whose bodies were recovered:

Two Americans and an unestimated number of Germans missing and believed to be buried under four Americans and 18 Germans seriously injured.

Ten Americans and 46 Germans slightly hurt.

Most of the German casualties were police and police auxiliaries. The American dead were a sergeant, interpreter, a private courier for the military government and a marine captain who was recently attached to counter-intelligence here after long service in the Pacific.

The three-story green-camouflaged brick building in downtown Bremen, which until 40 days ago housed German S.S. detachments, was shattered as if by a blockbuster just before 11 a. m.

Two walls facing the inner courtyard of the building collapsed in a burning mass of rubble which covered nearly a dozen military vehicles parked there.

Confiscated German ammunition which had been stored in a ground floor room continued to explode for a half-hour while German firemen fought the blaze and international rescue squads searched for victims.

Maj. Kennedy was on the third floor at the time of the blasts and escaped with a cut forehead. One of the explosions blew him through a door.

The German police chief, Robert Schloemer, was slightly hurt. Kennedy said he was informed the Germans had developed demolition charges with delayed action fuses up to 64 days.

The former police chief of Bremen, Maj. Gen. Albert Schorers, a high ranking Nazi and a brigade fuhrer of the S.S., was arrested by Kennedy on April 30 and shipped off to an Allied prison.

PORTSMOUTH, O., June 4 (AP)—Lt. Harold W. Goad was back home today with his wife who had married a navy ensign after the War Department reported Goad as dead.

"It's swell to be back," said the army flyer, 27 years old, who survived 18 months of Japanese prison camp near Rangoon. "I'm going to loaf around a few days, then go away with my wife for a vacation."

The wife, Helen, 23, arrived here three weeks ago from Long Beach, Calif., where she had been married to Ensign Robert A. MacDowell last December, four months after the War Department had reported Lt. Goad dead. He had been reported missing a year before.

GEN. HODGES JUST MISSED CAPTURE
IN THE ARDENNES

82nd Airborne Went Into Action in Nick of Time
During Nazi Drive in Battle of Bulge.

NEW YORK, June 4 (AP)—Gen. Courtney H. Hodges narrowly escaped capture by the Germans last December in Nazi Field Marshal Karl Rudolf von Rundstedt's Ardennes breakthrough.

Hal Boyle, Associated Press war correspondent, reported last night, Boyle, who won the Pulitzer prize for his stories of the European war, arrived yesterday in New York with Hodges' first Army's headquarters staff for a rest before going to the Pacific.

Describing the First Army's blackest day, he said that on Dec. 18, 1944, Gen. Hodges was at Spa, Belgium, when three German columns, racing toward the fortress city of Liege, rolled up to within three miles of his headquarters.

The Germans were bypassing Malmédy and were coming up toward Spa in several columns. Near Stavelot, Boyle said, was a large gasoline dump, capture of which would have provided them with fuel.

Hodges immediately sent his staff—except for essential operating personnel—back to Liege and threw in his last reserves against the German tide.

At 9:30 that night, he received a report of the arrival of Maj. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgeway's Eighty-second Airborne Division, moving into fighting positions around Spa.

Gen. Hodges moved to Chaudfontaine, just east of Liege, at 10:30, leaving the Hotel Britannique where in 1918 the Kaiser had walked on his way to exile.

The First Army headquarters and Hodges were saved—almost by split seconds—as Ridgeway's forces swung into action.

Boyle said he hoped "to continue on to the Pacific with the First Army as soon as I have had a rest."

Discussing the victory over the Germans, he said:

"One of the prime factors in our great victory in Europe was the leadership in the field of Gen. Omar Nelson Bradley of Missouri. No one who has watched his work in three campaigns in Europe and Africa can escape the hope that he will be employed to shorten the war in the Pacific."

"The worst news we could give the Japs is that Gen. Bradley is on his way to attack them. There is no more able general in the American Army."

home was an airplane flight across the Atlantic.

Details of the legal technicality involved in Mrs. Goad's second marriage have not been worked out, and the couple was reticent about discussing it. They indicated that can wait a while.

Goad wants to stay in the army. "If they'll let me keep on flying," he said, "I'll be a civilian pilot job."

"Five of us got out of the plane alive," Goad said as he told how a shell from a Japanese cannon-firing fighter plane hit his B-24's gasoline tank over Burma, Oct. 14, 1943. All are either home or en route home.

"We never knew what had happened to the other five. They surely died in the plane."

882 Casualties—Navy
Probably Destroyed 2
Submarines in South-

Now It Can Be Told

MIAMI, Fla., June 4 (AP)—Nazi submarines operating in the Gulf of Mexico and off Cape Hatteras, the graveyard of the Atlantic, attacked 111 Allied ships and caused 882 casualties during the European war.

The Navy thus disclosed part of the story of how a nation unprepared for defense turned the tide of battle against the U-boats.

Nazis sank 25 ships off the mouth of the Mississippi. One U-boat shot down a Navy blimp off Florida.

The Navy was nonetheless successful in putting a stop to sinkings in the Gulf. There were only four successful attacks in 1943, none in 1944 and none in 1945.

27 Ships Lost Off Hatteras. The 177-day battle off North Carolina coast the United Nations 27 ships—a gross tonnage of 109,785 tons. The number of U-boats destroyed is a part of the story that hasn't yet been told.

Some details were disclosed by official announcements here and at Elizabeth City, N. C.

The battle of Hatteras—a small part of the battle of the Atlantic—began late in January, only 45 nights after Pearl Harbor. The United States freighter City of Atlanta, its lights out and its radio silent, was the first to go to the bottom.

From then on, night after night, the skies at Hatteras were red with flames, and day after day the horizon was hazy with smoke, but by midsummer the tide of battle ebbed eastward.

The German raiders got their biggest prize—the British tanker Empire Gem, carrying 10,600 tons of gasoline—five days after the Atlanta went down. The craft exploded in the night with a great flash visible for 50 miles and a roar heard along the Carolina coast.

The Gulf battle opened off Florida a little later—Feb. 19, 1942. Two torpedoes struck the Pan Massachusetts. Twenty men were killed and 10 hurt.

Three days later three ships were torpedoed in the same vicinity. The S.S. Republic, the wreck still awash off Hobe Sound, the Cities Service Empire and the W. D. Anderson.

There was one sinking off the Texas coast in 1942.

Five ships were torpedoed off the coast of Mexico in 1942. However, there were only eight attacks in the extreme west part of the Gulf—that is, on routes between Texas and Mexican ports.

CHILLIEST JUNE 4
HERE IN 63 YEARS;
48 DEGREES AT 5

St. Louis awoke today to as chilly a June 4 as ever was recorded here.

When the mercury dipped to 48 degrees at 5 o'clock this morning it was the lowest for this date in 63 years. It's still the record for June 4, but the coldest for any June 4 in St. Louis was 44 on June 6, 1894.

Tonight will be another chilly one, Harry F. Wahlgren, Government weather man, said, though it should warm up somewhat tomorrow. The highest temperature reached yesterday afternoon was 53. A year ago today it was 90.

Shivering was general throughout the Middle West because of a slow-moving mass of cold air known as continental polar pushing down from the far northwest, Wahlgren explained.

"Pretty short summer," he said.

DAVIES BACK FROM LONDON,
REPORTS TO TRUMAN TONIGHT

Dinner Meeting Arranged; White House Not Sure When Hopkins Will Return.

WASHINGTON, June 4 (AP)—Joseph E. Davies will report to President Truman on his special mission to London at a White House dinner meeting tonight.

Davies, former ambassador to Moscow, returned yesterday from his conferences with Prime Minister Churchill and others looking to, among other things, an early meeting of the Big Three.

White House Press Secretary Charles G. Rose, who announced Davies' appointment to the President, said he did not know when Harry Hopkins, the President's special emissary to Moscow, would return. Truman told his press conference Friday that he expected Hopkins back within 10 days.

GUAM, June 4 (AP)—American carrier planes and Japanese land-based aircraft swapped punches over Okinawa and Nippon's mainland island of Kyushu during the weekend.

Adm. William F. Halsey Jr., who signaled his return to sea duty as head of the powerful United States Third Fleet by sending carrier planes against enemy suicide plane bases on Kyushu Saturday, repeated the attack Sunday.

The Japanese, meantime, unleashed their first strong air attack in five days on shipping off Okinawa yesterday. Adm. Chester W. Nimitz's communique today made no mention of damage to ships, but said 26 enemy planes were shot down.

The Japanese said their Kamikaze planes attacked a heavily escorted convoy of about 40 transports off Okinawa's west coast, setting one ship afire. They also reported an American amphibious landing on Okinawa's southeast coast. Two other American fleets were reported by Tokyo to be in Okinawan waters.

Raid on Kyushu. V. Adm. John S. McCain resumed command of the Third Fleet carrier forces, which Saturday raided installations at Miyazaki, Kokubu, Kurehara, Kagoshima, and Chiran airfields on Kyushu, 325 miles north of Okinawa.

Again yesterday they hit these suicide plane bases, finding fewer aircraft targets. Tokyo radio said 14 planes made yesterday's raid, flying in 14 waves.

On Saturday, Halsey's flyers destroyed two enemy planes in the air, 11 on the ground and damaged another 23. Yesterday they shot down six in the air and wrecked three on the ground, a two-day total of 22 destroyed and 23 damaged.

The Yanks received a fairly hot reception over Kyushu. The Tokyo radio said, without American confirmation, that 24 United States planes were shot down.

Makes Comment During Visit to Ballet School; He Will Stay Another Day in Moscow.

MOSCOW, June 4 (AP)—The Bolshoi theater ballet school buzzed today over Harry Hopkins' comment that "American women are pretty, but Russian women are really beautiful."

President Truman's personal representative made the comment while visiting the school.

Hopkins is expected to remain here at least another day. He has been spending most of his time conferring with members of the United States Embassy and chiefs of the various United States missions, including lend-lease.

Mrs. Hopkins has talked to dozens of Russian citizens, including Marshal Stalin, and has visited numerous hospitals, schools, war plants and theaters during her visit here.

PHILADELPHIA, June 4 (AP)—A 17-gun salute greeted Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Gen. Carl Spaatz and 51 other war heroes as they were welcomed at ceremonies here today.

Thousands packed the railroad station on the arrival of the visitors and other thousands cheered as they rode through the streets on the way to Independence Hall for a radio broadcast.

The group, led by Gen. Bradley of Missouri, Mo., commander of the Twelfth Army Group, and Gen. Spaatz, commander of the United States strategic air force in Europe, had planned to fly here in a formation of more than 100 planes but bad weather forced cancellation of the air program.

Gov. Edward Martin and Mayor Bernard Samuel headed a citizens committee, including civic and military leaders, which met the train. The visitors included Maj. Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe, commander of the heroic garrison at Bastogne.

Hopkins is expected to remain here at least another day. He has been spending most of his time conferring with members of the United States Embassy and chiefs of the various United States missions, including lend-lease.

By RUSSELL BRINES
MANILA, June 4 (AP)—Heavy fighting was under way yesterday northwest of Davao on Mindanao island. Maj. Gen. Roscoe B. Woodruff's Twenty-fourth Infantry Division pursued the ousted Davao garrison into the mountains around 10,000-foot volcanic Mount Apo.

Guerrilla forces captured Bayabas village Saturday after a brief but bloody hand-to-hand battle. Simultaneously, other units took the villages of Alhambra, Mulig and Ula and pushed through the jungle west of Panacan.

Yanks Fashion Trap.
Meanwhile, on central Mindanao troops of the Thirty-first Infantry Division hit a strong Japanese force Saturday east of Malaybalay. The Thirty-first is driving from the west to trap the remaining Mindanao Japanese between it and the Twenty-fourth. The Forty-eighth Division in central Mindanao is another side of the trap. Elements of the Thirty-sixth (Dixie) Division slammed into the village of Lumbayo east of Valencia and found it unoccupied.

American troops expedited the rout of the isolated Japanese in the southeast section of Mindanao by landing at Lumbayo, on the western shore of Davao gulf 75 miles south of Davao city in their amphibious shore-to-shore operation Friday.

Tank-led doughboys who broke into villages near Davao found fires in stores and food on tables, indicating the Japanese troops and civilians had fled hastily.

Push Into Cagayan Valley.

On Luzon island, veteran Thirty-seventh Division moved a half mile into the Cagayan valley along Highway 5. The infantrymen, encountering anti-tank fire but no organized defense, killed 75 enemy soldiers in their advance. Considerable equipment was captured.

The Thirty-seventh was four miles beyond Santa Fe on the winding, mountain road into the long valley where the Japanese are expected to put up their last big fight in the Philippines.

East of Manila the Thirty-eighth Division met stiff opposition on both sides of the Marikina and Bonobos rivers in clearing the watershed area serving the capital.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported in his communique today that 6550 Japanese dead had been counted and 503 prisoners taken in the Philippines in the past week, against American casualties of 225 killed and 657 wounded for the same period.

Over-all Japanese casualties were given at $85,480 for the entire campaign, which began last October. American casualties total around 50,000.

Planes based in the Philippines and East Indies attacked Japanese positions and shipping from Formosa through the China Sea to New Guinea.

Liberators unloaded 275 tons on Takao, Formosa airdrome base. Many warehouses and other buildings were destroyed. Reconnaissance planes patrolling from Singapore to Shanghai sank or set afire two freighters and two patrol craft and shot up Indochina rail facilities.

Thirteenth Air Force and Seventh Fleet planes hit Japanese and other Borneo targets with 190 tons of explosives, plus incendiaries.

U. S. Drives on Okinawa

In a swift thrust to the beaches of southeastern Okinawa, American forces have sealed off the Japanese amphibious landing near the peninsula's eastern tip and the entry of a fleet of more than 40 ships into the large Nakagusuku Bay anchorage. Other Yank forces captured a hill north of Karara and seized Kamizato.

drove into Chinen peninsula itself, where Japanese soldiers complicated the American assault by milling around among thousands of civilians.

On the north shore of Chinen peninsula enemy mortars and machine guns put up such a heavy fire that United States infantrymen called on a rocket boat to break up the concentration.

In the 13 days since the Seventh returned to battle, it has gone 9000 yards, and is now in the main effort to hold out in the center of the line at Shuri.

By showing through to the southern coast, the Seventh sealed the Japanese off in a pocket on the southern tip of the island nine miles wide and eight miles long. By moving out on Chinen peninsula, the division controlled most of the ground covering the vital Nakagusuku fleet anchorage.

Associated Press Correspondent Al Dopking reported that some front-line officers predicted the Japanese would be completely disorganized. Japanese remnants could be reformed into effective fighting forces.

Dopking reported after a flight in an artillery spotting plane he could see few signs of the Japanese preparing any stand short of Okinawa's southernmost hill line, running from Itoyan to the west coast to Gushichan on the east shore.

Little Japanese activity could be seen in the hill line farther north running through the town of Inasomi, Dopking said. This line has been penetrated by the Seventh Division's thrust into the hills below Shizato.

Dopking reported that virtually every Okinawa town and settlement had been leveled by artillery fire and air bombing.

The front was deep in mud, but the heavy rains appeared to be easing up and in some sectors tanks and armored equipment could be brought into limited operations. Better visibility aided artillery gunners in putting their shells on Japanese positions.

Lt. Col. James Weaver of Columbus, Ga., member of the Tenth Army staff, said the remnants of the Japanese garrison might revert to "pocket-type" warfare. Marine flyers made three attacks on Oroku peninsula around the airstrip, destroying three supply dumps. The Marines amphibious landing artillery planted shells from their big rifles on nine groups of the enemy seen moving around in the south.

Since Wednesday, when the First Marine Division first occupied Shuri Castle, more than 135,000 pounds of ammunition, food, water and medical supplies have been dropped by parachute to leathernecks isolated from their source of supplies.

The Yanks scored their broad gains on Okinawa as the Tokyo radio admitted the situation of the Japanese defenders "is to be regarded as very grave."

The enemy has succeeded in penetrating into Japanese main positions between southern Yonabaru and Naha, the enemy broadcast said, "and are even trying to attack the east coast of the island again."

The Tokyo radio said that "although the enemy has suffered heavily and our results have been really tremendous, the foe has created an acute situation."

The Japanese claimed they had inflicted losses of "more than 50,000 men" on the invaders and that "out of eight enemy divisions on Okinawa, four battle divisions have been completely put out of commission."

(Announced American casualties for all services up to May 29 totaled 37,925 killed, missing or wounded. This included naval casualties, which V. Adm. Raymond A. Spruance has termed "the greatest encountered in any of our operations to this time.")

The Tokyo radio said the landings were made at Kakino-Hana, about three miles southeast of Shini on Chinen peninsula.

CHINESE TROOPS GAIN 25 MILES IN PUSH ON LUICHOW

Japanese Reported Ripping Up Section of Railway From Hankow
to Canton.

CHUNGKING, June 4 (AP)—The Chinese have driven within 28 miles of strategic Luichow, former American air base site and Kwangsi province rail junction, the high command announced tonight. This was an advance of 25 miles from last reported positions.

In Hunan province, the armies of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek closed within five miles west of Shaoyang (Paoching), another former base of the United States Fourteenth Air Force.

The important road center of Tsinkong (Chienkiang), 430 miles southeast of Chungking, fell to the Chinese.

The speed of the Chinese advance toward Luichow underlined reports that the Japanese were withdrawing steadily. It was predicted confidently in Chungking that Luichow, which Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's flyers abandoned last Nov. 7, soon would revert to Chinese control.

The high command said the Chinese had regained lines held in Hunan province on April 9, when the Japanese started their abortive drive westward toward the American airbase at Chienkiang, 250 miles southeast of Chungking.

American Air Attacks.

The United States Fourteenth Air Force supported the drive on Luichow by bombing supply depots and antiaircraft positions there yesterday, an American communique said. Enemy supply lines north and south of the Yellow River also were attacked by heavy and medium bombers.

On top of reports last week that the Japanese had put the torch to Luichow, Fourteenth Air Force headquarters reported that a fighter mission had attacked a Japanese artillery column moving eastward from the city in the area of Towpail, 35 miles east on the Luichow-Canton road.

A Chinese field dispatch asserted the Japanese were moving large quantities of war supplies northward along the Siang river toward the Yangtze and destroying the Canton-Hankow railroad between the junction city of Hengyang, 60 miles southeast of Shaoyang, and Changsha, 95 miles north of Hengyang.

This would mean the Japanese were abandoning not only the corridor to Indo-China—where the Japanese had made 30-mile gains in what appeared to be a diversionary thrust westward from Siangsiang, enemy stronghold 60 miles north of Yengyang. This enemy drive appeared to be designed to relieve the Chinese pressure on Shaoyang.

Tempo of the Chinese advance toward Shaoyang, abandoned by the Fourteenth Air Force last September, seemed to indicate the Chinese had enough strength to recapture the base.

Chinese troops were converging on Luichow in two battle groups, one force striking upward from Tsinkong, while another aimed its attack from the west, where the Chinese battled for possession of Ishan, 43 miles from Luichow.

At the northern end of the front, the Chinese command said, the Japanese had made 30-mile gains in what appeared to be a diversionary thrust westward from Siangsiang, enemy stronghold 60 miles north of Yengyang. This enemy drive appeared to be designed to relieve the Chinese pressure on Shaoyang.

FLEET FLAGSHIP, Western Pacific
June 1 (Delayed) (AP)—Adm. William F. Halsey Jr., back at sea and looking for a fight, declared at a press conference today that "unconditional, unadulterated surrender" by Japan was the only peace the United States should consider.

Halsey indicated he did not think the Japanese had much navy left to fight with, but asserted his plans call for "knocking hell out of them wherever we find them." Asked whether he thought the remnants of the enemy fleet might come out as a gesture, he replied:

"I wish they would, but they've got damned little left to gesture with."

The Admiral said he would not be surprised if Japanese industrialists would try to save what they could from the war if they could get rid of the militarists, but "any such move would be from purely selfish motives."

Brushing off the subject of suicide flyers with the comment "They're just a damned nuisance," he said Japanese air power was suffering from "military cancer," and "it looks to me as if they had their fifth or sixth team in there now."

R. Adm. Robert B. Carney, Halsey's chief of staff, said the Japanese air force appeared to be washed up as an instrument of conventional operations. He conceded that suicide tactics were an obvious threat, "but they've expended every effort to break up the Okinawa operation and have failed."

GESTAPO INNER CIRCLE UNIT
UNCOVERED IN YUGOSLAVIA

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia, June 4 (AP)—A unit of the sinister Abwehrsteile, the inner circle of the Gestapo, has been uncovered by Yugoslav police here, foling what apparently were plans to keep alive Nazi ideology through underground methods.

A high Croatian Government official said the unit had a headquarters equipped with radios and evidently was just getting ready for operations. Several of the personnel were captured when police moved in a week ago.

TOKYO THREATENS PILOTED BALLOON ATTACKS ON U. S.

Propagandist Says Bomb-
Carrying Bags Manned
by Suicide Airmen Will Soon Be Loosed.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 4 (AP)—Japanese propagandists predicted today the United States would be attacked in "the near future, by bomb-carrying stratosphere balloons manned by death-defying Japanese pilots."

The broadcast, by the Japanese Domei news agency, said Lt. Col. Shozo Nakajima, propaganda spokesman of the Japanese armed services, made the prediction.

Nakajima said the pilotless balloon attacks, recently disclosed by the United States Army, were being against America last March 10, Japanese Army day, that hundreds of them had been released from Japan every day since.

"The spokesman pointed out," Domei added, "that thus far these attacks have been on an experimental basis and he predicted that when actual results of the experiment have been obtained, large scale attacks with death-defying airmen manning the balloons will be launched."

The dispatch, dated Singapore, added:

"The balloon bomb is one of Japan's unique origins and it is especially significant in that by use of this method of bombing we can attack the enemy mainland directly from Japan—something that the enemy cannot do."

Nakajima complained that United States officials in the Pacific were withholding information about the bombs "did not divulge the extent of damage caused by the bombs."

"But we can surmise," he added, "that they are creating great quantities of war goods which they are sending to the front."

Domei said the propaganda chief placed the ceiling of the balloons at over "15,000 meters, far beyond the reach of enemy interceptors," and said they take "just over 100 hours to reach the United States."

CRACK U. S. TASK FORCE DUE IN OSLO TO SUBDUDE GERMANS

Enemy Troops Still Strut About Streets,
Most of Them Armed—Norwegians Fed
Up With Situation.

By WILLIAM H. STONEMAN

The Chicago Daily News-Post Dispatch Special
Radio, Copyright, 1945.

OSLO, Norway, June 4.—A crack American task force, including the 474th Infantry Regiment of the Eightieth Division, is due in Oslo today to help put a stop to the nonsensical situation which has existed here since the German capitulation.

They will probably be welcomed by Germans in uniform leaning out of windows in office buildings which the Germans still occupy, but that should not last long.

The task force will include the Ninety-ninth Battalion, a crack outfit of Norwegian-Americans who saw service at Attu. Other battalions in the 474th Regiment have been in Germany where they were used primarily as a security outfit. They should be an ideal force to deal with the Germans, numbering between 400,000 and 500,000 who are still here in Norway, most of them in possession of their arms, waiting for us to do something about it.

Commanding the task force is Brig. Gen. Owen D. Summers, Fort Huachuca, Ariz., with Lt. Col. Angelo de Bollero, Cherry, Ill., as chief of staff.

Norwegians are fed up with the current situation, in which they are compelled to watch the Germans walking about the streets and rolling about in Wehrmacht cars, obviously doing nothing but breathing a bit of Norwegian fresh air and getting tanned.

Now do they understand how the commander of the Allied forces in Norway could have brought him to require the duty of the "Gimle" residence that Dr. Vidkun Quislin occupied after he came to power. The house belongs to the Norwegian state and Quislin's occupancy of it constituted a crime in the eyes of most Norwegians.

Nor do they understand the wholesale requisitioning of the vast quantities of war goods which home-front troops had impounded and guarded when the Germans surrendered.

Stories Hard to Believe.
You can scarcely believe some of the stories of what the Germans have done here since they were supposed to have capitulated, and, admittedly, they should not be true. But they are.

On Saturday night, they began to run wild in the neighborhood of Hammar and Lille Hammar and scared the wits out of locals by shooting off their guns. Some planes of the Royal Air Force and the Norwegian Air Force went up and buzzed around them and put them in their place.

Three days ago, when German woman clerks were evacuated from offices in Oslo City Hall, they emerged carrying radios, cameras and binoculars.

The home-front guards told them to return such articles to their offices. A short time later the German women tossed a shower of radios, cameras and binoculars out of the upper story of the building, smashing them on the pavement.

Seized Brandy Supply.
When the Germans were evacuated from Drammen, southwest of Oslo, they took with them 150,000 bottles of brandy, which they are now busy drinking.

Yesterday when I tried to take a photograph of some German sailors marching gaily into city hall, their officers had the cheek to tell me not to do so. They were indignant at my reply.

All Germans in Norway should have been disarmed and put into concentration camps by now. The only possible reasons for sending Allied troops here was to insure that it would be done expeditiously.

BEVIN CONTENTS AUTO TAX
KEEPS BRITISH CARS SMALL

LONDON, June 4 (AP)—Ernest Bevin, former Minister of Labor, protested in the House of Commons today against the British method of taxing motor cars on the basis of horsepower. He argued it was responsible for a large number of small cars, adding:

"Why should we perpetuate the misery of a driver riding with his knees in his mouth?"

Meanwhile, Britons taking their cars out yesterday for the first time in nearly three years, found many were useless. Tires popped, carburetors choked and radiators leaked.

EISENHOWER TO BE RECEIVED
BY JOINT SESSION OF CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, June 4 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower will be received by a joint session of Congress when he returns to this country from Europe.

Senate Majority Leader Barkley of Kentucky told reporters of plans for the reception today after a conference with President Truman. Barkley said the date for the joint meeting had not yet been set, and details are being worked out.

Speaker Rayburn said Gen. Eisenhower would be asked to address the joint session.

Gen. Eisenhower is expected here June 18.

FIRST COMPLETE ARMY UNIT IN U. S. ON WAY TO PACIFIC

1453 Men of the First
Army Among 10,000
Arriving at New York on Seven Ships.

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

NEW YORK, June 4 (AP)—The United States First Army, famed for the "firsts" it recorded in its dash from the Normandy beaches into Germany, today had another "first" to its credit—the first fighting group to send home a complete unit for redeployment to the Pacific.

Cramming the deck of the troopship Monticello, a former luxury liner, 1453 officers and men of the Army that was the first to invade continental Europe, the first to span the Rhine and the first to clasp hands with the Russians at the Elbe river, embarked yesterday at a New York harbor pier to the sound of whistles, sirens and jive music.

The men were among 10,000 veterans of the European struggle who arrived here aboard three troopships and four Liberty ships which nudged their way into the harbor through a mist that almost shrouded the Statue of Liberty.

The Monticello, which bore a huge A, the First Army's insignia, fashioned from army tents at Weimar, Germany, also carried 3339 liberated prisoners who were taken to Camp Kilmer, N. J., and 409 wounded soldiers and sailors who were sent to Halloran General Hospital, Staten Island.

The other troopships were the Lejeune, which carried 2424 liberated Americans, 377 rotational troops and 701 wounded, and the Santa Margarita, with 199 liberated prisoners.

The General Gordon docked today with 1405 liberated American prisoners of war. Most of the liberated men were Army officers.

Among the passengers was Edward Kennedy, Associated Press correspondent who filed the story of the German surrender a day before it was announced in the United Nations capitals.

Replying to direct questions, Kennedy said he was surprised by the differences with Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Forces, Kennedy told reporters "I have not changed my mind about Allen" (Brig. Gen. Frank T. Allen, headquarters public relations head).

Answering another specific query he said "I have so much to say about S.H.A.E.F. that there is no time to talk about it."

NAVY PLANS PANTS WITHOUT PINCH OR FLARE FOR SAILORS

Uniforms Promised for After the War Also Might Have Useful Pockets.

WASHINGTON, June 4 (AP).—The Navy gave its enlisted men today another good reason for whipping the Japanese soon. After V-J day, those bell bottoms may go out of style. The new pants will not be too tight, and there might even be a decent pocket or two.

Restyling the sailor's getup now is under consideration by a special Navy board. But the pinch is that material is likely to be short as long as the war goes on. Senator Langer (Rep., North Dakota) does not want to wait that long. He introduced a bill to do away with bell bottoms, saying the sailor doesn't like them. The enlisted men consider that an understatement. They don't like the jumpers, they don't like the square collars, they can't get anything into that tiny pocket and the neckerchief is a nuisance. Probably their biggest complaint is about the pockets. There are three, in whites, and four in blues, all small. There are two in the trousers, located at the waistline on either side, similar to watch pockets in civilian clothes. The white jumper has a single pocket, outside. The blue has another inside.

CHURCHILL SAYS SOCIALISM MUST BE TYRANNICAL

Opening Election Campaign, He Declares Laborites' Policy Would Lead to Police State.

LONDON, June 4 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill opened the Conservative party's election campaign tonight with an attack on the socialist policy of the Labor party which he said "is abhorrent to British ideas of freedom." "There can be no doubt that socialism is inseparably interwoven with totalitarianism and the abject worship of the state," he said in a radio address.

"I declare it to you, from the bottom of my heart, that no socialist system can be established without a political police," he said. "No socialist government conducting the entire life and industry of the country could afford to allow free, sharp or violently worded expressions of public dissent. They would have to fall back on some form of Gestapo."

"They Hunger for Controls." "Look how, even today, they hunger for controls of every kind, as if these were delectable foods instead of wartime inflictions. There is to be one state to which all are to be obedient in every act of their lives. This state is to be the arch-employer, arch-planner, arch-administrator and ruler."

"Socialism is, in its essence, an attack not only upon British enterprise but upon the right of an ordinary man or woman to breathe freely without having a harsh, clumsy and tyrannical hand clapped across their mouths and nostrils."

Churchill concluded: "I claim support of all throughout the country who sincerely put the nation first in their thoughts. Leave these socialist dreamers to their Utopias or their nightmares. Let us be content to do that heavy job that is right on top of us."

Speech by Unionist. Jack Tanner, president of the Amalgamated Engineering Union, which claims 1,000,000 members, denounced Churchill as a peace-time leader and declared there were many signs that British foreign policy was "causing suspicion and distrust among our allies."

Tanner told the union's convention the "Tories must go if we want homes, schools and jobs for all."

SHIPS ENCOUNTER ICEBERG IN FOG, 22 ARE DAMAGED

LONDON, June 4 (AP)—A Lloyd's list disclosed today that 22 ships were damaged when their convoy encountered icebergs in a dense fog in the North Atlantic on May 27.

Eleven were American, seven were British, two were Norwegian and two were Dutch. The ships either collided with icebergs or with other vessels.

The accidents occurred south of Newfoundland and east of Nova Scotia at latitude 43.08 north and longitude 49.18 west. Lloyd's did not say where the ships were bound and made no mention of loss of life.

American vessels damaged were listed as the steamers John Henry, Paine Wingate, John B. Hood, William Muhlland, Alexander Graham Bell, Jonathan Trumbull, James Kyron Walker, Joseph H. Hollister, Henry Villard and Pennsylvania and the tank steamer G. Harrison Smith.

Nazi, 17 Years Old, Gets Death For Fighting After Reich Gave Up

By KENNETH L. DIXON BAD HARBURG, Germany (AP)—Siegfried Benz, 17-year-old Nazi storm-trooper who tried to carry on the war two weeks after Germany's surrender, has been sentenced to death by an American court martial in one of the first convictions of its type.

His final attempt to kill Yanks failed, but he was convicted of "continuing the armed attack on Allied forces in defiance of the terms" of Germany's surrender. He was captured in the Harz mountains, sector after having fired on and thrown hand grenades at three members of the United States 280th Field Artillery.

German civilians throughout the United States Eighty-third Division's occupation zone immediately began to speculate as to what would happen to Siegfried. After all, he had killed no one—at least this last time. And did not everyone know the Germans were soft?

Give Four-Hour Trial. They got their answer after a four-hour trial marked by no sign of softness except a determination to give Benz a fair trial.

Now there is considerable thoughtful discussion because the story of the trial spread over the grapevine almost as fast as did word of Siegfried's doom.

The debut follower of Hitler sat poker-faced while Lt. Royden B. Bowen, club plane observer from Houston, Tex., and Cpl. William B. Hunter of Fresno, Cal., gave the testimony which condemned him. It was those two and Cpl. Robert Engstrom of Bear Lake, Minn., who captured Benz and killed his comrade.

They told how they had been informed of the S.S. hiding place by German civilians who had been fired on by the two Nazis, and how they had discovered a small camouflaged tent.

"I called on the occupants to come out several times. So did one of the German civilians who came but we received no response," Bowen testified. Swiftly Cpls. Edgar Schipper and William Baer, both New Yorkers, appointed to aid the Storm Trooper's defense, translated for him.

Siegfried sat stolidly and continued to chew his gum.

Grenade Thrown From Tent. Bowen said he then fired two shots into the group of a hand grenade was tossed from the tent. All three Yanks took cover but it would have been too late if the grenade had not been a dud.

"Hunter then emptied a clip from his carbine into the tent," Bowen continued, "after that there were two pistol shots from inside the tent and another grenade that failed to explode." Shortly after that Benz surrendered.

A search of the tent revealed that Hunter's shots had mortally wounded the other Storm Trooper, which the prosecution insisted proved that Benz had fired the pistol shots at the Yanks and had thrown at least the last hand grenade.

111 ALLIED SHIPS ATTACKED IN GULF AND OFF CAROLINA

struck, the Gulf Sea Frontier Command made a survey of its fighting force. It consisted of: Six small ships, four of which were laid up for repairs.

Fifteen unarmed Coast Guard observation planes.

Fourteen single-seater planes with 30 caliber machine guns.

Three B-18 bombers, which were so old that it was not unusual for them to require two days of repair work after being used one day.

The commander also had "on call" for emergencies the ships from the fleet sound school at Key West and such other aircraft as might be in the area.

Gulf Sea Frontier officers estimated that they fought 34 different U-boats during the war. There may have been more.

The Gulf Sea Frontier got its first probable kill when a submarine was tracked down in the Straits of Florida June 11, 1942.

The other probable kill took place July 8, 1942, 35 or 40 miles northwest of the west end of Cuba.

In the Hatteras battle, the situation was better. At Pope Field, 204 miles away, a good half of the effective striking strength of the Army air arm was concentrated. The air forces went into action at once. Later Army ground forces were deployed along the coastal islands.

One incident was related in the disclosures: In the early days of the war, a submarine commander surfaced to survey the damage. There were small boats—pleasure craft—in peacetime—on the scene helping with the rescue.

"Get the hell out of here before you get hurt," the submarine commander told the small-boat men.

DOLLAR 1000 TO 1 IN CHINA

CHUNGKING, June 4 (AP). The black market value of the American dollar has topped 1000 Chinese dollars for the first time and shows signs of rising still further.

Added to the miseries of summer heat and inflation was a temporary water shortage in the capital. Muddy water from the Yangtze was retreating for $500 (Chinese) a bucket and electric fans were selling for $150,000 each.

TWO NAZI BOYS, 16 AND 17, EXECUTED FOR ESPIONAGE AGAINST AMERICAN ARMY

PARIS, June 4 (AP).

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS announced today that two German boys, members of the Hitler Youth organization, were executed for espionage last February against American forces in the Aachen area.

They were Heinz Petry, 16 years old, and Josef Schoner, 17. They were caught hiding in a foxhole near Birigen, Germany, last Feb. 22. They were tried by a military court at Muenchen Gladbach March 29 and sentenced to death. Lt. Gen. William H. Simpson, Ninth Army commander, approved the sentences.

The boys first said they were fugitives from a Nazi labor detail, but later confessed and told of an espionage mission to which they were assigned.

It was on this point that Siegfried's attorney—an American captain—based much of his defense, stressing that the young storm trooper who was killed had thrown the first grenade and that Benz denied any knowledge of the pistol shots or the second grenade.

However, the main defense was built around Siegfried's contention that he did not know that the war was over. He testified that he had been in hiding for three weeks and had not spoken with any civilians or seen any American military government proclamations.

Proclamation Posted Nearby. But the prosecutor—another captain—promptly proved that one such proclamation printed in German was posted less than 500 yards from Siegfried's hideout.

That point probably convicted Siegfried. But although he sat still expressionless to the trial's end, his counsel fought on to save his life, asking the court's leniency on the grounds that Benz was captured without any American being killed.

It was that sort of thing that puzzled the German civilians—this business of an American pleading for the fanatical enemy's life even in the courtroom. These Harz Mountains have housed many examples of German military justice, but instead of courtrooms, it consisted of crematoriums, concentration camps and torture chambers.

But if this was a sign of "decadent democracy's softness," it was belied swiftly by the court's pronouncement of the death sentence.

Yet even the Germans understood the probable reason why the court denied leniency. Inside his tent they had found American ration papers, and the sign of the American soldiers to whom these articles had once belonged.

TALK OF SYMINGTON FOR WAR SURPLUS JOB

Emerson Electric Co. Head One of Several Executives Being Considered.

By a Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 4—W. Stuart Symington, president of Emerson Electric Manufacturing Co. of St. Louis, is one of several business executives under consideration for the prospective vacancy in the chairmanship of the War Surplus Property Board, the Post-Dispatch learned today.

The present chairman, former Senator Guy M. Gillette of Iowa, has announced his resignation, to be effective not later than July 15. The Surplus Property Board will handle war materials with a value of billions of dollars. If Symington should become its chairman, he would be the latest in a succession of names named for important positions in the administration of President Harry S. Truman.

He became acquainted with the Senator Truman when the latter served as chairman of the Senate committee on the war contracts of Emerson Electric, which makes turrets for bombers at its plant at 8100 West Florissant avenue.

Symington has said that he was impressed by the thoroughness and fairness of the committee's procedure. The acquaintance which he then formed with its chairman has been continued by several meetings since.

No statement could be obtained from the White House today as to the prospect of Symington's selection. Charles G. Ross, presidential press secretary, said only that the question of a successor to Gillette was under consideration.

Symington, when asked by the Post-Dispatch as to the possibility of his appointment to the Surplus Property Board chairmanship, said he had not had any official notice that his name was being considered. He is 43 years old, and has been head of Emerson Electric since September, 1938, when he was made the company's general manager, becoming president soon afterward.

150 SKELETONS FOUND AT JAP PRISON CAMP

fied as Filipinos, but many are officially recorded as Americans. Evidence has been obtained that the deaths were not caused by violence, but by deliberate neglect and desertion. It is believed that when the Japanese withdrew from the coastal area of Davao to prepared positions in the mountains they took physically able prisoners and left the rest to starve or die of disease.

From records and other evidence uncovered at the penal colony, officers have traced the history of some 800 Allied prisoners and as a result have recommended the change in status from missing in action.

As yet no figures are available on how many are now listed as dead and how many as prisoners of war in the Japanese homelands.

Lt. Leonard S. Mendelson, Pittsburgh, Pa., who was one of the first to visit the area, gave this account of the grisly scene: "There are a number of wooden buildings. Most are in good shape. I went into one which I assumed to be the hospital. In a long wardroom, I saw two corpses. One was just a skeleton. It was either unclothed or the clothes had mildewed and fallen away. The other was mummified and had on a baggy, shapeless uniform such as prisoners might wear. Both were on beds.

"On the porch and the outside walk, bones were thick. They were scattered and wild squashed against the wall and over the skeletons. It was almost impossible to avoid stepping on a skull or other remains.

"Across the street, in another building, I saw another complete skeleton lying on the floor. In another building a man's skeleton was lying on a bed and on the bed next to it was a snapshot of an American woman and children. "One man in my party said he saw one skeleton kneeling in a chapel."

27,000 Veterans to Leave Pacific

MANILA, June 4 (AP)—Twenty-

Filipinos were living in some houses of the penal colony. It has not been explained why they did not bury the dead or aid the sick after the Japanese left.

Near the colony, which is 25 air miles northwest of Davao, is a plot marked "American National Cemetery—1942," Mendelson said. He counted 20 graves, all but one of which were marked with name, rank and date of death. Most were officers.

seven thousand Pacific veterans will be en route home or awaiting transportation to the United States for discharge from the army by the end of June, headquarters announced today.

COURT RULES OUT BAR ON ESQUIRE AS 2D CLASS MAIL

Appellate Opinion Says Walker Had No Power to Censor Reading for Public.

WASHINGTON, June 4 (AP)—The United States Court of Appeals ruled today that Postmaster General Walker had no right to revoke the second-class mailing privileges of Esquire magazine.

The court reversed a district court decision which had upheld the Postmaster General's ruling that the magazine failed to comply with legal requirements for second-class mailing privileges. Walker said it used indecent, vulgar, risqué pictures and writings as "a dominant and systematic feature" which "most certainly cannot be said to be for the public good."

Second-class mailing privileges provide low postal rates. Attorneys for Esquire magazine have estimated that loss of such privileges would cost the publication more than $500,000 annually.

The appeals court remanded the case to the district court.

Opinion by Thurman Arnold, written by Justice Thurman Arnold, agreed with Walker that publications enjoying second-class mailing privileges are "under a positive duty to contribute to the public good and the public welfare."

"But it does not follow," the opinion continued, "that an administrative official may be delegated the power first to determine what is good for the public to read and then to force compliance by putting editors who do not follow them at a competitive disadvantage. It is inconceivable that Congress intended to delegate such power to an administrative official or that the exercise of such

WAR DUTIES THIS WEEK: SPEND VACATION AT HOME, SAVE PAPER, TILL GARDEN

WASHINGTON, June 4 (AP)—The Office of War Information said today:

"The Government needs and asks its citizens in this 182nd week of the war against Japan to:

"Plan to spend your vacation at home and leave railroads free for increasing furlough travel and redeployment of men to the Pacific.

"Join the Cadet Nurse Corps and help meet your country's wartime nursing needs. Sixty thousand high school graduates between 17 and 35 are needed. Ask your local hospital about this free training.

"Salvage waste-paper scraps as well as newspapers and magazines. The paper shortage remains critical.

"Serve in your community as a price panel assistant. Volunteers are urgently needed in the job of holding prices down and preventing inflation. See your local rationing board.

"Make sure of the biggest possible harvest from your victory garden, and store and can for your family's needs. Civilian supplies of canned vegetables will be lower next winter."

power, if delegated, could be held constitutional."

Justice Arnold's opinion said "What the government appears to assert is that the power to charge Esquire an additional $500,000 a year for use of the mails, unless it conforms to the postmaster general's notions of the public good, is not a power to censor because the magazine may be mailed at the higher rate. . . . He appears to think of his duty under the statute, not as administration of non-discriminatory rates for a public service, but as analogous to the award of the Navy E for industrial contributions to the war. . . . The second-class mailing rate is conceived by the postoffice to be an award for resisting the temptation to publish material which offends persons of refinement."

Highway for All Business.

"But mail service is not a special privilege. It is a highway over which all business must travel. The rates charged on this highway must not discriminate between competing businesses of the same kind. . . . The case before us involved freedom of speech as well."

Arnold said "Since we hope that this is the last time that a government agency will attempt to compel the acceptance of its literary or moral standards relating to material admittedly not obscene, the voluminous record may serve as a useful reminder of the kind of mental confusion which accompanies such censorship."

PARLEY COMMITTEE APPROVES PLAN FOR PEACE BY FORCE

this one point—the conference may produce a wide-open floor fight in its closing days.

Even though the charter is approved as it stands, it may be accepted by some countries only with reservations. Guillermo Bell, Cuban delegate, said that would be true in the case of his country and that he expects many small nations to stick together on the veto issue.

Ambassador Andrei Gromyko has reported to Moscow that the other big powers would not accept his Government's rigid interpretation of the veto—that it should apply even to preliminary discussion in the council.

Another Big Five meeting was called for today, following one last night and two Saturday. Except for this one question, the powers were reported to be making rapid progress toward resolving issues on which they are acting jointly.

Agreement on 14 Problems.

Last night's meeting completed agreement in principle if not in actual words on 14 out of 18 problems which were before them when the current series of speed-up talks started Friday night.

Questions other than the veto on which no agreement has been reached yet are final points in a plan for international trusteeships, changes in wording which the French are seeking in provisions for special defense treaties against the enemy states of this war, whether the proposed assembly of all United Nations should have the right to discuss any international situation rather than just peace and security questions, and whether the veto vote should apply to charter amendments.

On the last point the Big Five have agreed in general that the veto should apply to amendments—despite small nation arguments to the contrary—but a final decision is still to be made.

The 14 points on which agreement has been reached are said to cover application of the veto to the election of a secretary general of the world organization, but removal of the veto from election of judges to a world court since they would be chosen jointly by the council and the assembly.

Speculation on Hopkins' Job.

American officials evidently are hoping that Russia has somehow misunderstood what the United States is driving at in upholding the principle of free discussion. The Americans argue that, veto or not, the council could not as a practical matter take any sort of vote until it had discussed the question on which it was voting.

There is some speculation that since Harry Hopkins, President Truman's special envoy, has prolonged his stay in Moscow, he may be instructed to discuss the matter directly with Premier Stalin.

A. A. Sobolev, one of the 11 original Russian representatives at the conference, has left for Moscow. The Russians give no explanation for the recall of Sobolev, who participated in drafting of the veto interpretation which was rejected by the Kremlin.

LESS OPA SALES TALK, MORE MEAT NEEDED, BOWLES IS TOLD

WASHINGTON, June 4 (AP)—Price Administrator Chester Bowles, urging a 12-month extension of OPA, told the House Banking Committee today "the most dangerous year" in combating inflation lies ahead.

"We know," he said, "that inflationary pressures are now at an all-time high—with liquid assets in excess of 300 billions. We have the lesson of the last war to tell us that the greatest dangers lie ahead rather than behind."

Representative Wolcott (Rep.), Michigan, Republican leader of the banking group, then told

Bowles: "As far as I know nobody is against a year extension of OPA. We don't need a sales talk from you. We only want to know how we can improve OPA—how we can get more meat, more butter and such things on the table."

ANDERSON URGES RIGID FOOD QUOTA FOR ARMY ALSO

Wants All Agencies Held to Specific Amounts to Bar Raids on Civilian Supplies.

WASHINGTON, June 4 (AP)—Chairman Anderson (Dem.), New Mexico, of the House Food Committee proposed today that Government agencies, including the Army, be given fixed food quotas to prevent raids on civilian cupboards. Anderson will become Secretary of Agriculture next month.

He suggested to President Truman that food allotments for the Army and for overseas shipments, as well as for civilians, be assigned in three-month periods and that no agency be permitted to go beyond its allotment.

"We should have over-all quotas that can't be shifted," he said, "so that OPA will know exactly what it will have for civilians."

Army Exceeds Quota.
Quarterly food allotments are made now on most foodstuffs, but they are not rigid. As a consequence the Army, which has first call, frequently exceeds its quota, thus putting a crimp in anticipated civilian supplies.

For the first half of this year, as an example, the Army took far more sugar than it originally expected to use. Similarly, it stepped up its set-aside of lard to 50 per cent of production when lard became scarce.

"We ought to have an understanding among the Army and overseas agencies so that nobody can go beyond the supply allotted," Anderson told a reporter.

OPA Butter Prices Assailed.
OPA policies are forcing butter into a flourishing black market, and the black marketeers apparently are not interfering with C. B. Rader, business manager of the New York Mercantile Exchange, told the House Food Committee.

He said OPA pricing orders have caused a curtailment of butter production, maldistribution of supplies and encouraged illegal sales and purchases, and caused general hardship and chaos in all phases of the industry in spite of the record-breaking milk production.

Anderson pressed him for direct evidence of black market purchases but Rader said he could give no specific instances.

"However," he said, "the butter is still being produced but regular purchasers cannot buy it through their customary sources. The conclusion is that it is being sold elsewhere at higher prices."

Evidence that Army purchases of butter this year will be almost double those of last year, despite the fact butter production is down, was presented to the committee by Government and private industry witnesses.

U. S. FLEET TRADES AIR BLOWS WITH JAP LAND PLANES

States planes were shot down, 16 on Saturday and eight yesterday.

Superior Jap Planes.
A dispatch from Adm. McCain's flagship said that American carrier pilots in Sunday's sweeps over Kyushu reported they ran into aggressive Japanese planes, flying better and faster planes than the Americans had.

The weather was greatly improved over Saturday, but so was the enemy fighter opposition, which was sparked by a new type of high performance, high speed plane.

American pilots said the Japanese were very experienced pilots employing aggressive tactics similar to the American.

Lt. Fred C. Hamilton of Pratt, Kan., landing signal officer aboard Adm. McCain's carrier flagship, said nearly every fighter and fighter-bomber in Saturday's attack "returned either shot up or almost out of gas."

It was a long hop, and they had to fly through 200 miles of zero ceiling weather. Straining pilots reported seeing many dummy planes on the fields and also many previously strafed wrecked aircraft. Some gunners wasted bullets on old damage.

Air Force Change.
It was announced that Mustang fighters of the Seventh Fighter Command on two have been placed under the tactical and operational command of the Twentieth Air Force. They formerly were under operational control of Adm. Nimitz.

The command was changed to achieve more effective co-ordination of Seventh Fighter Command Mustang forces in flying escort missions over Japan with Twenty-first Bomber Command Superfortresses and in making fighter sweeps against air bases guarding Japanese cities.

The Twentieth Air Force took the first time acquired aircraft of a type other than Superfortresses.

DE GALLE TALKS WITH U.S., BRITISH ENVOYS ON LEVANT

France's "greatness," that is to say that he has been purposely avoiding an Anglo-French entente, until he could exact concessions on the Rhine, in the Middle East and elsewhere.

Acting Premier Jamil Mardam Bey of Syria asserted last night that the French had intended to trap Syrian deputies and cabinet members in the Parliament house when the attack on Damascus opened last Tuesday.

"We know the plot was much greater than first believed," he said. "Parliament was supposed to meet Tuesday. The French planned to attack the deputies there on the excuse that Syrian gendarmes in front of the Parliament building, which is just across the street from French headquarters, did not salute the French flag."

He declared that statements that the Syrians started firing were "absolutely not true," adding that for two hours after the outbreak Syrian gendarmes did not fire back.

"Finished With French."
Mardam Bey said that events of the last week "liquidated the French-Syrian situation." "There is no longer any French side to the situation," he asserted. "We are finished with the French."

In Cairo Premier Abdel Hamid Karamah of Lebanon and Saadullah El Gabry, president of the Syrian Chamber of Deputies, asserted in a joint statement that the French had used American lend-lease supplies in the Syrian fighting. De Gaulle had denied this.

The statement said Syria and Lebanon would "fight until every single house is destroyed and every native is killed, in order to keep our independence. We will not sign any treaty with France." At Bombay, Mahomed Ali Jinnah, president of the All-India Muslim League in a statement called the Syrian incidents an indelible slur on the French nation and said De Gaulle and his colleagues should be tried like war criminals.

BRADLEY, SPAATZ AND OTHERS GET 17-GUN SALUTE

Postage and author of the now-famous reply of "nuts" to a German demand for surrender. Spaatz, a native of Boyertown, Pa., not far from Philadelphia, said he yearned for some "good old Berks Country sausage" and that he liked it smothered. Spectators promised he would receive some soon.

Arrival in New York.
At a press conference shortly after the Generals' arrival in New York yesterday by air, Gen. Bradley said: "I can tell you that Germany has been destroyed utterly and completely."

With Gen. Bradley were Maj. Gen. Leland S. Hobbs, commander of the Third Division and other war heroes.

Accompanying Spaatz were Maj. Gen. Clarence R. Huebner, commander of the Fifth Army Corps, and Maj. Gen. Elwood R. Quesada, who headed the Ninth Tactical Air Command.

Gen. McAuliffe was accompanied by Maj. Gen. Paul L. Williams, of the troop carrier command.

Maj. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, a native of Chariton County, Mo., commander of the 101st Airborne Division, arrived at New York in a third plane yesterday.

When asked what their future plans would be, each of the generals echoed Bradley's comment: "We go wherever we sent."

"The magnificent efforts of our allies and the tremendous force of manpower and industry were the decisive blow," Spaatz said.

Tough Decision.
Bradley said that one of the toughest decisions he had to make was whether to pause after the St. Lo break-through for defense or to try to go through when the Germans counter-attacked.

"We waited 24 hours," he said. "We took one division through. We risked a lot but we bottled up the Seventh German Army. St. Lo was one of the highlights of the campaign."

"One thing that Gen. Bradley did made me mad," said Gen. Quesada. "And he did it often. We would drub the Germans and he would thank me. I couldn't make him understand that there was no need for thanks, because it was part of our job and a pleasure."

The two four-star generals were met at New York by their wives and a group of high-ranking Army officers.

LADUE FLYER GIVEN 2 D.F.C.'S AT ONCE

Col. James T. Pettus Jr. Already Had One—Cited for Silver Star Also.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
FIFTH AIR FORCE, Philippines, June 4—Col. James T. Pettus Jr. of Ladue was awarded two Distinguished Flying Crosses by Brig. Gen. J. V. Crabb, commander of the Fifth Air Force Bomber Command, at a formal review recently.

The awards were for two "outstanding missions." A third Distinguished Flying Cross had been awarded Col. Pettus previously. He is the son of the vice chairman of the board of directors of the International Shoe Co.

Col. Pettus also holds the Air Medal with two Oak Leaf Clusters and has been recommended for the Silver Star for leading the Forty-third Bomb Group, a Liberator unit, in a raid on the Japanese oil refineries at Balikpapan, Borneo, last Oct. 10 without losing a plane, although every plane in the group was damaged.

"I suppose we were just lucky," Col. Pettus said of that raid. "The Japs intercepted with 60 fighters. When the group returned to their base Col. Pettus' own plane had 50 holes in it and his tail gunner was wounded."

Col. Pettus, 25 years old, has flown 52 combat missions for a total of 404 combat hours. He started his career with the Royal Canadian Air Force, but transferred to the American Air Force in 1942 with the rank of captain. 5445 Arsenal street.

ARMY STUDY PLAN FOR MEN STILL IN EUROPE LAUNCHED

Eisenhower Inaugurates Program to Help Fit Yanks for Civilian Roles.

PARIS, June 4 (AP)—The Army intends to "do everything we can assist the American soldier in preparing himself to meet the new challenges of civilian life," Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower said today in a statement inaugurating a vast program of education for American occupation forces and those waiting to return home.

"In the last analysis, these challenges will be met and overcome through the inherent good sense and industry of the soldier himself," he said. "In establishing this diversified program in the European theater of operations, we are not proposing or promising to work miracles."

Eisenhower said the program would reach all soldiers who desire to participate in it and whose military duties permit and promised that "no phase of the program will delay the return of any soldier or unit to the United States."

The program, part of which already is under way, includes study and training in unit schools operated by and within the various units, in civilian educational institutions, in special Army universities study centers, training in a centralized vocational school and study in the Army's system of correspondence schools.

Writer Watches Okinawa Battle From St. Louisan's Spotter Plane

Sees Supplies Being Carried to Front by Hand — Groups, Possibly Civilians, on Move Behind Jap Lines.

By AL DOPKING
IN AN ARTILLERY OBSERVATION PLANE OVER SOUTHERN OKINAWA FRONT, June 2 (Delayed) (AP) — With observation plane pilot Second Lt. Claude E. Slater, 4604A North Broadway, St. Louis, Mo., I watched American forces today aloft through muck sometimes knee-deep in pursuit of retreating remnants of Japanese forces.

We could see only a few Japanese soldiers in the area directly before the Seventh Infantry Division on the east coast.

Behind the Japanese lines were some scattered groups moving northward, perhaps Okinawan civilians seeking safety.

There were a few bursts of fire a couple of miles southwest of Yanabaru ruins as the Seventh ran into light pockets of resistance.

Troops of Col. Roy A. Green, Sacramento, Calif., were mopping up what was left of the little town of Ogasuku. Occasionally a burst of machine-gun fire would send them splashing in mud but they seemed to be having no great troubles.

South of recently captured

Shuri castle I saw small plumes of white smoke where Marine planes were making strafing runs.

In the little town of Chan, a company of the Ninety-sixth Division under Lt. Harold E. Weingartner, North Little Rock, Ark., got mixed up in a fight with the company had killed 75 Japanese.

As we circled over the village of Tera, doughboys were north of the town.

Getting to the Tera area represented nearly a 1500-yard advance for the Ninety-sixth Division with most of their supplies carried by hand.

Yank front line signal panels flashed up again as we approached a high central part of the island, east of Inosomi where it was once believed the Japanese might make a stand.

Lt. Slater is the husband of Mrs. Betty Slater, who lives at the North Broadway address, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Slater, Fair Grove, Mo. He entered service in March, 1941, and has been overseas since last January.

ST. LOUISAN LANDS PLANE, SHOT UP BY JAPS, ON CARRIER

Aileron and Flaps Blasted Off
Lt. Larry Sovanski's Ship
Over Kyushu.

ABOARD ADM. JOHN S. MCCAIN'S CARRIER FLAGSHIP OFF THE RYUKYUS, June 2 (Delayed) (AP) — The American carrier-based flyers who swept major Japanese airfields on southern Kyushu island today agreed that the going was "really rough." Lt. Fred C. Hamilton of Pratt, Kan., landing signal officer, said nearly every plane in the attacks "returned either shot up or almost out of gas."

Hamilton said Lt. Larry (Ski) Sovanski of St. Louis, Mo., "came in with one aileron shot away, no flaps, the rudder almost shot off and the plane full of holes. With his hydraulic system shot out, he landed okay but at twice normal speed."

Sovanski gave this account:

"First I was hit over the target, then an Oscar streaked out of the clouds above and blasted my plane. He shot up the flaps and tore the rudder in pieces. I used both hands on the stick to keep the plane flying. I first tried to make Yontan airfield (on Okinawa) but the weather was too heavy. I finally made it back to the carrier, but my radio, which also was shot up, was heating so badly I had to turn it off.

"I made one long, straight approach to the flight deck. I knew if I didn't make it the first time, I never would. I landed safely but yanked the whole tail hook out before it stopped. Boy, I sure was glad to get down on that deck!"

Lt. Sovanski, 29 years old, is the husband of Mrs. Audrey Sovanski, 13 Blakemore place, Pine Lawn. A resident of Pana, Ill., he entered the service four years ago from college at Peoria. He has an 11-month-old daughter.

FRENCH EXCHANGING CURRENCY TO WIPE OUT ILLEGAL HOARDS

PARIS, June 4 (AP)—Forty million Frenchmen are scheduled to dig down in their socks today to scrape their folding money together and begin replacing every bit of currency above 50 francs for shiny new bank notes in one of the largest exchanges of its kind in history.

The exchange will cancel funds retained by the Germans, who left France with pockets and valises bulging, as well as currency held irregularly here. The Government expects the move to ferret out collaborationists who made illicit war fortunes and to force back into circulation notes and bonds being hoarded by profiteers.

Each person making an exchange must present his identity and ration cards.

Senate Committee Considering Broad Plan for Merit System in State Administrative Departments

Senator Arnold Leonard's Proposal Includes Bipartisan Boards Answerable to Governor for Most Offices, With Definite Fixing of Responsibility.

By CURTIS A. BETTS

State Political Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 4.

THE Legislature has the opportunity to put the executive branch of the state government on a high plane, giving promise of non-political administrative efficiency, through the adoption of a broad plan submitted to the Senate Committee on Governmental Reorganization by Senator Arnold Leonard of Joplin.

To bring about the greatest efficiency in the administration of state business, Leonard advocates the adoption of a merit system in all state administrative departments. He realizes strong pressure will be brought to bear against it by practical politicians in and out of the Legislature.

Leonard is a banker and formerly was chairman of the Republican County Committee of Jasper county. His business judgment influences him to advocate a merit system, and it is his theory that greater advantage will come to a political party from providing efficient government than from adherence to the spoils system.

Studied All States.

His plan, of which the committee began consideration last week, is the result of an exhaustive study of the administrative set-ups of all the states, and is designed not only to meet the requirements of the new Constitution, but also to take advantage of the opportunities offered by it for improved administration.

The Constitution requires that the activities of the 80 existing state boards, bureaus and commissions shall be consolidated in 14 departments, including those presided over by the elective state officials, the Attorney General, Secretary of State, State Auditor and State Treasurer. These offices were made executive departments in the Constitution, which also created six additional departments, leaving only four to be set up by the Legislature.

Under the Leonard plan, there will be departments of revenue, education, highways, conservation, agriculture, public health and welfare, commerce, labor, military affairs and administration. To each he proposed to assign a number of the existing departments, a sort of catchall for activities for which there seems to be no logical place in the other departments.

Bipartisan Boards.

Conforming to the trend in Missouri in recent years and to the general policy of the Constitutional Convention, he proposes that each department shall be headed by a bipartisan board or commission, with two exceptions, the Department of Revenue and the Department of Military Affairs. The Constitution requires that the revenue department shall have as its head a director, and the Governor, as commander in chief of the National Guard, would be in direct control of the military department.

The boards or commissions would vary in size from four to eight members appointed by the Governor, and with staggered terms to avoid the confusion which exists when there is a complete change in the control of departments with a change in the governorship. Instead of the present system, under which the Governor names almost every employee down to the janitors, the boards would select the heads of divisions and they would select the minor employees.

Specific authority is given the Governor by the Constitution to name department heads, but it also specifically provides that the heads of departments shall have the power to select and remove employees unless different provision is made by the Legislature. Leonard favors compliance with the evident intent of the Constitution.

Responsibility Fixed.

Throughout the plan there is an attempt to fix definite responsibility. The boards are directly accountable to the Governor for efficient operation. The heads of divisions are directly accountable to the boards, and the other employees are under the personal supervision of the division heads. There may be some question as to the advisability of placing the departments under boards instead of under individual directors. The bipartisan board plan, with the continuity of unbroken authority through appointments of members for staggered terms, however, gets as far away from the spoils system as seems possible.

While the Leonard plan as so far explained to the committee is concerned more with the grouping of present boards and bureaus than in consolidation of activities, the separate Senate committees charged with the duty of drawing the bills to carry the plan into effect can, if they will, combine many of the activities.

It is Leonard's theory that a number of existing boards can be supplanted by one director, such as the Social Security Commission, the Unemployment Compensation Commission and the Board of Managers of Eleemosynary Institutions. On the other hand, there are certain quasi-judicial commissions, such as the Public Service Commission and the Workmen's Compensation Commission, which he believes should be retained.

It will be the function of the Committee on Governmental Re-

U. S. Submarine Stuck in Mud Off Japan, Finally Pulled Free

Screws Reversed Time After Time to Escape Warships Waiting Overhead—One Supply Boat Met by Filipinos With Band.

By HAMILTON FARON
(FOURTH OF A SERIES.)

AT SUBMARINE BASE IN WESTERN PACIFIC, June 4 (AP).

STUCK in the slimy mud of enemy coastal waters while Japanese warships sought it overhead, an American submarine fought its way out of the mire and escaped.

Waters were not charted completely in the area where it cruised on a war patrol, but it had gone in close to shore to carry on the war of attrition against the Japanese merchant fleet.

The submarine went down to escape detection until an opportunity arose to attack a worthwhile target. As it moved slowly along the bottom there was a jar throughout the boat. It plowed ahead for a moment. Then it stopped, lost all forward motion although its propellers still were churning. The screws were reversed and still it did not move. It had plowed into a mudbank, and apparently was hopelessly stuck.

Crew Carries On.

The men aboard were worried, of course, but there was no panic. Each man continued to do his job. Time after time the submarine's screws were reversed, sending vibrations throughout the boat. It would move slightly, then stick again. Enemy warships were seeking the beamed boat to batter it with depth charges.

Again and again the submarine tried to pull out. Finally it moved. The men grinned at their companions. Things were looking up. They tried again and it moved some more, this time for a longer distance, and finally it was free. Speed had been reduced and the vibration continued. The screws had been twisted out of line in the effort to pull out of the mudbank. But it came home.

Fanfare in Philippines.

Another job for which the submarines were used was supplying guerrilla fighters in the Philippine Islands during Japanese occupation. The submarines boats slipped into bays and coves at night.

The delivery was carried out at least one occasion under the eyes of the enemy and with pomp and fanfare, relates Lt. W. R. Anderson of Waynesboro, Tenn., who served aboard the bold submarine.

Anderson, now engineering officer on another submarine, said the boat, on which he served many months ago, slipped into a bay, then up the estuary of a river on a Philippine island. The submarine crept over sandbars in the bay and nudged its way upstream, several times hanging-up momentarily. Finally, Anderson says, it reached the dock where a huge welcoming committee was lined up in holiday attire. Flags were waving and people cheering and there even was a band to play "Anchors Aweigh" and other Navy tunes, he continued.

Despite, or possibly because of, the welcome, the boat's officers took no chances on a trap and made doubly certain there was no ambush before preparing to unload the supplies they carried.

Later they asked guerrilla leaders if they were not taking great risks in permitting the demonstration, Anderson said. The leaders replied that the Japanese had been told, and believed that the welcome was part of a carefully planned celebration of a local holiday.

BOLD SURFACE RAID ON ENEMY CONVOY

WASHINGTON, June 4 (AP)—A submarine's daring surface attack on a Japanese convoy at anchor in water too shallow to permit a dive won high honors for the vessel's skipper and crew. The submarine, the Barb, sent so many enemy ships to the bottom

RUSSIAN WRITER URGES COALITION TO UNIFY CHINA

Suggests All-Party Meeting, Removal of Kuomintang Reactionaries.

MOSCOW, June 4 (AP).—A Russian journalist said yesterday the way to bring national unity in China is by creation of a coalition government dedicated to democracy and to winning the war. The Chinese also should improve their relations with the Soviet Union, the United States and Great Britain, added Commentator Krainov, writing in the government newspaper Izvestia.

Krainov declared the first step should be the calling of an assembly of all parties, groups and organizations in China, and that the second step should be removal of reactionaries he said are now at the head of the Kuomintang, Chinese government party.

Then, he asserted, the Chinese soldiers, who know how to fight, could bring to bear their full power against the Japanese.

The Soviet writer said that although battle conditions were favorable to the Chinese, a Chinese army last year "without a battle abandoned important positions."

This writer asserted some Chinese military leaders are more concerned with "liquidation of the partisan movement and blockading of a special frontier district" than they are with combatting the Japanese.

Krainov said there is no doubt but what the "Kuomintang seeks to preserve entirely the power in its hands."

Navy Now Has 28 Carriers. PORTSMOUTH, Va., June 4 (AP).—The commissioning of the 27,000-ton aircraft carrier Lake Champlain yesterday gave the Navy a total of 28 carriers, exclusive of escort carriers, in contrast to the one carrier it had in the Pacific in the fall of 1942.

Columns of fire leaped from several vessels," the Navy reported. "The first target was seen to settle in the water. Some vessels that were hit were obscured by others burning in the line of vision. Pillars of smoke poured skyward. The side of one vessel blew out like the fired magazine of a warship. Two ships exploded and sent a shower of tracers in all directions."

As Fluckey had hoped, the anchored junks impeded and confused pursuers as the Barb headed for open water. In the confusion, some of the junks were fired on. Also, as he had hoped, the pursuers were discouraged by the rocks, through which the Barb moved like a broken field runner. When the Barb reached open water, dawn was breaking, but it had not yet reached safety. A Japanese plane sighted it, and for the first time since it had spotted the rich prize, it was forced to submerge.

The Navy did not disclose the date or the location of the attack.

U. S. Steps Up Drive Urging Jap Surrender

Radio, Pamphlets Used to Counter Foo's 'Enslavement' Propaganda.

By ROBBIN COONS

GUAM, June 4 (AP)

A TWO-WAY American surrender campaign, carried out by radio and through pamphlets rained daily from Superfortresses has brought a warning from Tokyo to the Japanese that just such propaganda brought the downfall of Germany and Italy.

Office of War Information broadcasts from Saipan daily stress that "unconditional surrender" does not mean enslavement or extermination of the Nipponese people.

The American propaganda campaign against the enemy military clique, accelerated to full scale in the last month along with stepped-up B-29 fire raids, is accenting President Truman's call on the Japanese to surrender.

Apparent effectiveness of the campaign is indicated by the strong reaction of the enemy's radio propagandists.

Navy Officer's Role.

Truman's message promising destruction of enemy military power, but no "obliteration of the Japanese people or bondage" if they surrender, is being showered in Washington, D. C., by Capt. Ellis M. Zacharias, former captain of the battleship New Mexico and cruiser Salt Lake City, who spent several years in Japan as a naval language officer.

Zacharias' message "to responsible and thinking Japanese" recalls his 20 peacetime years as a friend of the Japanese people, his close acquaintance with many Japanese dignitaries and his service as aide-de-camp to Prince and Princess Takamatsu during their visit to the United States in 1931.

The broadcasts emphasize that surrender entails neither enslavement nor extermination.

"These thoughts have been injected only by your (former) Premier Gen. Koiso as an ignoble device to compel your people to continue a hopeless war," broadcast Zacharias. "I know you've been told otherwise by individuals who have no future and therefore have nothing to lose."

The broadcast reminds the listeners that Koiso promised to defend Guam, Tinian, the Philippines, two islands and the skies over Japan, and then asks: "Where have they gone?"

Soviet Writer Says U. S. Role Of International Mediator Has Been Lost by Policy of 'Drifting'

Influence of America in Many Cases Reduced to Subordinate Part—Syrian Dispute Cited as Showing Need for Unity of Great Powers.

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW, June 4 (AP).

EVGENI ZHUKOV, Izvestia correspondent at San Francisco, asserted yesterday that "in the opinion of a number of persons, the policy of mediation which was successfully carried out by Roosevelt has now changed to a policy of 'drifting' which in many cases reduces the foreign policy of the United States to a subordinate role."

Zhukov also stated that one can already hear declarations that the United Nations security conference has been "practically useless."

He said that there was some editorial insistence in the United States that Secretary of State Stettinius and his assistants should be replaced on grounds their foreign policy has failed.

Estimate of Stettinius.

Writing about Stettinius and his foreign policy, Zhukov said: "Some American journalists are particularly dissatisfied that the important role of the United States foreign policy—recently mentioned by Stettinius in a speech—is not carried out in real life; the appearance of the United States in the role of mediator."

Commenting on the Syrian situation, Zhukov said: "One should be aware of the realistic fact that at present Syria and Lebanon are states which regrettably are still the objects of others—stronger powers who have big political, economical and military interests in the Middle East."

"Therefore the conflict between the two minor countries and France expands beyond the frames of its immediate relation. This only once again proves that local disputes easily become a conflict which concerns the Big Five."

Big Power Unity Needed.

"The five great powers of the permanent members' security council have serious political interests in all parts of the world. As a rule they in general cannot remain indifferent to local conflicts, particularly those which affect at least one of the great powers. That means that maintenance of the international organization depends primarily on preserving the unity of the great powers, the U.S.S.R., the United States, England, China and France."

He told Russian readers that the bitterest critics of the Crimean conference voting procedure are seeking to represent the situation in Syria and Lebanon as a special illustration of safeguarding the interests of minor nations.

"The way to success along these lines, some gentlemen assert, is the General Assembly and weakening the role of the Big Five." Zhukov added that this was not the first attack on the unity of the great democratic powers.

Collision of Interests.

"In this case, many assume that this is not only a conflict between France on one side and Syria and Lebanon on the other, but at the same time a collision of interests of France and England."

"The Soviet Railway Workers' newspaper Gudok said today that Congresswoman Clare Boothe Luce is making speeches in which she seeks to frighten Americans by saying that in 13 countries in Europe the Communist power has been established." The newspaper also asserted that the New York Knights of Columbus were demanding a crusade against Bolshevism and that readers of the New York Times were "dumb-founded the other day" to read a story about "revival activities of the Comintern."

Gudok said these elements did not reflect the opinion "of the vast body of Americans and British."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
I was one among the first to see the Post-Dispatch exhibit of German atrocity pictures. It is a great service you are performing for your readers, both locally and in the metropolitan area.

It occurred to me, while viewing them, that I wished it were possible for you to take this exhibit direct to the people in the various schools, churches, institutions, etc., in the communities close by, who may never have the opportunity to see them and thus learn and be convinced.

That quotation from Von Rundstedt from an address before the War Academy in Berlin, and that picture overhead in the middle of the exhibit, in which one can readily see the premeditated plan of the Germans to exterminate the intellectuals of all European countries, are enough to convince anyone of the barbarity and ruthlessness of our foe.

Let us not be squeamish about showing this exhibit to school children. We must inculcate into them a total abhorrence of war.

Most of our children today have fathers, brothers or other kin actually engaged in this war. They should be first to learn what war is and what war does to people. Only after seeing such exhibits as yours can we make them detest war.

Let me thank you for the opportunity to view the exhibit. It was not pleasant to behold. But then, war itself is not pleasant to think of—not when you are in my boots and have one son and two sons-in-law at the front.

Cleanliness Begins at Home

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Now we know that when the Allies said they aimed to clean up Europe, they meant it literally. But don't send 'em ALL the soap and other bathroom and laundry essentials. Americans want to keep clean, too.

Ramspeck's "General Manager"

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Ordinarily I do not undertake to comment on editorials appearing in the newspapers I read, but because I have such a high regard for your editorial page, I am writing you to correct what I think is a misunderstanding of the suggestion I recently made to the President for the appointment of a general manager.

Under our Constitution, the executive power is placed in the President. No one else has or can have authority over the various departments and agencies in the executive branches of the Government. Of course, the President has no time to devote to the details of management in the departments and agencies.

The Budget Bureau does have a management division, and it has attempted to bring about better management in the various departments and agencies. However, the departments and agencies can disregard the suggestions of the Budget Bureau, and generally do.

I think the President needs an assistant with broad experience in business management, whose duty it would be to represent the President in deciding whether or not the suggestions made by the Budget Bureau should be made effective.

There is no co-ordination between the departments and agencies, and if one department develops good methods and economical procedures, no one except the President can see to it that these improvements are adopted in other agencies.

Burke, the Rat-Killer

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I see where a Rat Elimination Committee wants ideas to get rid of rats. The people would have been well on their way toward ridding the city of rats if Paddy Burke had been elected. Paddy's platform called for daily rubbish collection, which would have eliminated the chief breeding source of rats in St. Louis.

If Paddy Burke, Walter Toberman and Renick were on the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, we would get action. Burke would not stand for buck-passing between the Department of Welfare and Streets and Sewers Department.

From now on, we will get talk, inaction and plenty more rats under Kaufmann.

Suggestion to Military Governors

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

To make certain the German people see the follies of their past endeavors, I suggest that all currency, money orders, revenue stamps, checks, postage stamps, ration coupons and the like—that is, all printed material regardless of by whom issued, and for which the purpose is to pay for or to be exchanged for any purchase—have emblazoned on them reproductions of the scenes of German atrocities committed on peoples of other countries, also those committed on their own people.

This would, I believe, be a constant reminder that the fruits of their labor have been criminal weaknesses and not lasting benefits.

MVA's Fate Up to Truman

The Murray MVA bill is about to be subjected to a strangling filibuster through the proposal of Senator Overton of Louisiana, chairman of the subcommittee which must next conduct hearings on it, to put off the hearings until October. If Overton is to be prevented from thus side-tracking the bill, it seems President Truman must adopt it as an administration measure.

We urge Mr. Truman to do so. We think it is time for him to show where he stands, not by speech alone but by action. So far, his course has been ambiguous.

Mr. Truman declared himself for MVA in the most vigorous terms in the campaign last year. For instance, in a radio address at New Orleans last Oct. 12, he vividly described Missouri River floods with their enormous losses, indorsed the MVA plan as a remedy and said:

The time has come when we must cure this situation once and for all and bring the people of the Missouri and Mississippi valleys real security in their homes and in their work. We must do for them what the administration already has done for the people of the Tennessee Valley.

Floods will be ended, power for new industries created, fertilizer made available to farmers at low prices and without heavy freight charges, electric lights for all and cheap electricity for the home and the farm, water for irrigation and many other benefits too numerous to relate here.

All of this can be accomplished for the lasting benefit of every townsman and farmer, big and little, in the entire valley, if we have the determination and the vision to act boldly and fast.

As Vice President, Truman broke precedent to surrender the MVA bill to its worst enemies by referring it to the Commerce Committee of the Senate instead of to the Agriculture Committee, which was capable of giving it a fair hearing. He said then that he would see to it that a fair-minded subcommittee of the Commerce Committee was appointed to hold the hearings.

The subcommittee was composed of enemies of the bill, headed by Overton. The proceedings were prejudiced and venomous. Now the bill has been referred to the Irrigation and Reclamation Committee—and Overton is again the subcommittee chairman.

President Truman's record on MVA to date, therefore, is that while he has declared himself unequivocally for it, every action he has taken has been against it and he has not turned a finger in its favor. The occasion urgently calls for the President to go into action in accordance with his promises.

MVA will do more to provide immediate jobs and permanent opportunities for livelihoods than any other postwar project. It will supply thousands of jobs building dams and clearing reservoir areas. As set forth in Senator Murray's article on this page today, it will create thousands of new opportunities for permanent livelihoods by expanding the agriculture, industry and commerce of the region. Every day lost in its initiation would be costly to returning soldiers.

Unless the MVA bill is enacted, the Missouri Valley project will be gummed up by red tape, will be confused by interdepartmental bickerings between the Army Engineers and the Reclamation Bureau, with a half-dozen or more bureaus horned in. If the Murray bill is enacted, the development program will be a going concern—the biggest public-works and work-relief project in progress.

What are we going to provide for returning veterans and out-of-a-job war workers, here in the Missouri Valley? Jobs and livelihoods, or just a ringside seat at a bureaucratic dogfight?

That is the vital issue which waits for a solution by act of Congress—and over which Senator Overton proposes to take a four-month nap.

That is the vital issue which is now squarely the responsibility of President Truman.

In consideration of the seriousness of the meat shortage, the title should, it is believed, be changed to "One-Half Meat Ball."

What Bonds Are For

The sale of E bonds in the St. Louis area is running far behind schedule and behind other "big league" cities. It isn't likely that St. Louisans are less intelligent or less patriotic than other Americans, for in almost every other way they have shown themselves highly intelligent and patriotic.

Does St. Louis provide exceptional temptations to spend one's money, perhaps? That is a good idea to put behind oneself. Prices are at higher levels than they will be when goods become more plentiful. Money put in bonds now will be available, plus generous interest, when the store shelves are stocked again.

Meanwhile, we have two wars to win—one against Japan, one against inflation. The war against inflation is our war, here at home. If we lose it, we shall be betraying all those who come home from the Pacific war. It is a time for measuring up.

If Sam Clemens were alive today, he would hardly be saying that no one is doing anything about the weather. The line would be, rather, that someone should be doing something about it.

Where Are All the Nazis?

The biggest mystery in Germany today is not What became of Hitler? It's What became of the Nazis? It's a greater mystery because there were far more of them.

A very short time ago, all Europe was alive with Nazis. Evidence of their presence is still to be found over the entire world. But having done their work, they seem to have vanished.

People in Germany talk about them, but no one ever sees one. You know they have been there, because when you question Germans about the million-and-one war crimes, they just say, "It was the Nazis." Everything was done by the Nazis; yes, indeed, but no one is a Nazi.

Instead, everyone in Germany today is a gentle, home-loving, hard-working creature who went about his business, hardly aware there was a war being fought and certainly not aware— heaven forbid—that people were being tortured and burned by the hundreds of thousands in murder factories.

Or if they did know, they had no hand in it, nor could they do anything about it. Because, you see, it was being done by the Nazis, and there is nothing you can do about what a Nazi does, any more than you can do anything about what an ogre or a vampire or a werewolf does.

Maybe there was something supernatural about the Nazis. Maybe they just sprang, full-grown, from the earth one night, and then, having done their work, vanished in a cloud of smoke and fire. Leaving the German people, those sweet, simple German people, a little confused. Maybe that's why no one can find a Nazi.

Severe Naval Losses at Okinawa

The emphasis in the two months of fighting at Okinawa has been on the land forces. Their battle has been a grim one, but now the public is finding out that the Navy, too, has had a terrific uphill job in the conquest of this Jap outpost.

The casualty figures tell part of the story. The Army lost 3603 killed up to May 29; the Marines 1889—and the Navy and Coast Guard a total of 4729. At one stage in the fighting, it was announced that for the first time in any amphibious operation in the Pacific, Navy personnel losses had exceeded those of ground forces. Total fleet losses at Okinawa, says Adm. Spruance, have been "the greatest naval casualties encountered in any of our operations to this time."

In addition, there have been considerable losses and damage to naval vessels. No figures have been issued recently, but Adm. Nimitz said almost a month ago that 26 light fleet units had been lost in air attacks. The high casualty figures obviously mean serious losses in ships.

No such Navy losses were suffered at Tarawa, Saipan, Leyte, Iwo or elsewhere. Why the heavy toll at Okinawa?

Evidently, as our forces draw nearer the enemy's home islands, Jap resistance is being stepped up. It may be that air reserves are being called out for a last-ditch fight. There are growing reports of suicide attacks by Jap flyers. There is the possibility, also, of new and deadly weapons. For instance, Adm. Nimitz said on April 27 that airplane-launched rocket bombs piloted by suicide pilots were being used.

This is a situation of military security, and the Navy is justified in its censorship if it is designed to keep the Japs from learning the results of their attacks. Still, enough is known to prove that we still face a powerful enemy.

There is something the civilian can do about this if he is a skilled worker. West Coast shipyards are seriously disturbed over their shortage of workers. They have sent out an appeal for volunteers to speed the necessary repairs.

A damaged ship is equivalent to a ship sunk, for the time needed to repair it. On the other hand, every ship repaired speedily and sent back into action brings the end of the Pacific war that much closer. Okinawa may fall soon, but ship losses there may affect naval tactics for months.

Every citizen should realize the gravity of this situation. And every worker who can repair a ship will serve his country if he signs up for a West Coast job.

Gen. Bradley in Philadelphia

This is a big day in Philadelphia. Gen. Bradley and Gen. Spaatz are being welcomed with a great homecoming parade and a victory rally at Independence Hall. St. Louis envies Philadelphia in its first opportunity to welcome Missouri's distinguished son, but we hope the General can accept Mayor Kaufmann's invitation to visit St. Louis later for a welcoming celebration, which we promise right now will outdo anything the Quaker City can provide.

We hope, too, that Gen. Eisenhower will be able to visit St. Louis, so our citizens can honor his great leadership at first-hand.

"General Manager" Again

There ought to be better business management in the Federal establishment, as Representative Ramspeck says in a letter printed today, and there ought to be better means for making good practices available to the agencies. It is wholly fitting, therefore, that a presidential assistant be assigned to this field. Mr. Ramspeck's letter, however, does not allay the misgiving that his proposal smacks of putting one more layer on an unsatisfactory cake.

The Budget Bureau, like a presidential assistant, is a direct arm of the White House. Its suggestions, Mr. Ramspeck says, are often disregarded—a statement which those who have felt the bureau's power over the purse may be disposed to dispute. But if Mr. Ramspeck is right, why not strengthen the bureau instead of creating a new official to say which of its directions shall and which shall not be enforced?

Three courses are open: Strengthen existing managerial agencies; abolish their powers and give them to someone else; leave the powers in nominal existence but dilute them by setting up new instrumentalities with concurrent or superior jurisdiction. The first is promising. The second is possible. The third would make another such mess as exists in, for example, labor affairs under the Federal Government. The burden is still on Mr. Ramspeck to show clearly that he is not advocating that third course.

"Monstrous Absurdity" in Syria

We hope that Gen. De Gaulle will give more than lip service to the profound truth he uttered Saturday in his remark on the Damascus troubles: "It would be the most monstrous absurdity if, having ended the war against Germany, we should find ourselves confronted by bloody incidents between the Allies."

It is also a monstrous absurdity that he ignored the beam in France's own eye to charge a mote in England's by charging that the Syrians "carried arms furnished by the British." The "bloody incidents" came from French shelling of the heart of Damascus.

The four-power conference De Gaulle has proposed would be all right if its scope were limited to settlement of the Syrian imbroglio. But it would open a Pandora's box of troubles if France, Britain, the United States and Russia were to have to determine the future of "the whole Arab world," as De Gaulle proposes. On the other hand, the British insistence on localizing and settling the problem of the Levant is sound and statesmanlike.

We hope that Gen. De Gaulle, whose good qualities we have commended and whose patriotic purposes we respect, will reconsider his hasty actions and co-operate in ending this ill-timed essay in power politics. To do otherwise would be a "monstrous absurdity."

Mississippi has collected a half-million dollars in taxes on black-market liquor. Evidently the State taxed the law violators almost as heavily as it taxed its conscience.

Murray Sums Up What MVA Means

Author of Senate bill for new Authority points out that it would protect millions of acres from floods, make many more productive, increase electric power for region and improve navigation; the water rights of Western states would be well protected, he says.

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Senator James E. Murray of Montana in the Colorado Editor, Magazine of the College of Journalism, University of Colorado

The broad purpose of the Missouri Valley Authority as proposed in the bill I have introduced in the Senate is sound development of the Missouri River Basin for the benefit of the people of the area and for the national welfare.

For the early postwar period, the MVA program should provide vigorous stimulation of employment and business activity, not only in the Missouri Valley but also widely in other sections which would be called on to supply equipment and materials for construction.

Intelligent and effective control and utilization of the waters of the Missouri River and its tributaries must be provided. This is fundamental in the plan for an MVA, where the public interest comes first.

Four Foremost Gains

The gains are many, but foremost are these:

1. Protection of 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 acres of rich crop lands on the lower stretches of the Missouri and its main tributaries from annual destructive floods;
2. Conservation of much of the excess stream flow which would have caused floods, so that in due season it may be used to give productive life to nearly 5,000,000 acres of fertile land in the arid plains and mountain valleys;
3. Low-cost production of perhaps 10,000,000 kilowatt-hours a year of electricity to add to the comforts and profits of farm life and to promote industry throughout the area;
4. Improvement of navigation on the main stem of the Missouri to the extent economically justified and compatible with the beneficial consumptive uses of the waters of the controlled river system.

Achievement of these primary objectives calls for an intelligent program of land conservation—protection of the soil against erosion by water and wind, planting of trees and other vegetation which will retard runoff and help hold precious water in the ground, and the rebuilding and maintenance of fertility so that the land may remain a valuable national asset.

Out of all these benefits grows another major one—promotion of wildlife, fish, game and birds, and development of the region's vast recreational possibilities in its streams, lakes, forests and mountains.

Would Unify Management

The economy of the region, which is one of the nation's richest, will be advanced. Areas which have gone backward in recent years because of drought and erosion will get new life and will contribute to the national wealth. Highways, railroads and airlines will be busier than ever.

It is true many of the projects contemplated in the MVA plan already have received the diligent attention of various Federal agencies. The Reclamation Bureau, the Corps of Engineers, the Soil Conservation Service, the Fish and Wildlife Service and the Geological Survey have conducted extensive research, developed excellent plans and in some instances executed important projects in this area. It is not the purpose of an MVA to scrap the accomplishments of these excellent agencies. The MVA, however, will supply the unified, co-ordinated and elastic management, on the pattern of the Tennessee Valley Authority, which is so necessary to a satisfactory overall program for the Missouri River drainage basin.

In the revised bill now before Congress, which has been introduced also in the House by Representative John J. Cochran of Missouri, an effort has been made to deal with those special conditions and situations which differentiate the Missouri Valley from the Tennessee Valley.

At the same time, there has been retained in this bill the basic principle of autonomous regional administration, the flexible business management from headquarters right in the area, which has contributed so much to the success of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

No Irrigation Impairment

New features in the bill give the highest degree of protection to the established water rights in the Western states of the region and provide for the development of public lands and the extension of irrigation to encourage family-type farming.

Specifically, the revised measure assures the up-river states where irrigation is practiced that there will be no impairment of water rights which have been established under state laws, and that if stream flow from waters arising west of the ninety-eighth meridian is insufficient for both consumptive uses (including irrigation) and navigation, the consumptive uses shall have preference.

For the encouragement of family-type farming (as distinguished from large corporate or commercial farming), it provides that water for irrigation shall be supplied to not more than 160 acres for any one owner, conforming in this respect to existing reclamation laws.

LAST WORD ON WHITE'S BOOK

From the Saturday Review of Literature.

Edgar Snow delivered a telling indictment of William L. White's "Report on the Russians" at a recent Herald Tribune Book and Author luncheon.

"White's book contains mistakes, but its description of living conditions in Russia is in most ways quite accurate. There is, however, one serious omission in it. It is a report on a gravely wounded nation, but White almost totally neglects to state that minor fact."

"His account is therefore as objective as a story I might write about any one of you, under similar conditions. I could say that when I saw you you never smiled, you had no sense of humor, you showed no interest in your work, you seemed frightened, you looked haggard and weary, and your clothes were ragged and torn."

"It might all be true, but still it wouldn't be a fair picture of you as a man or woman if I neglected to add that my interview with you had taken place in an ambulance, while you were on your way to a hospital after having been hit by a 10-ton truck. . . . A 10-ton truck, by the way, that would have run over me, if you hadn't been standing in the way."

New Economic Setup in Europe Is Required, an Economist Says

"A Price for Peace," by Antonio Basch. (Columbia University Press, New York.)

While the immediate and necessary business of punishing war criminals is still foremost in the public view of the many problems related to the reconstruction of Europe, consideration must be given to long-range economic questions involved if a balanced perspective is to be maintained. In this 200-page study, subtitled "The New Europe and World Markets," such issues are treated in temperate and dispassionate fashion by a former Czech business man and professor of economics at the University of Prague.

Prof. Basch, now in the economics department of Columbia University, shares the general current opinion that a strong new Germany, basically unchanged in political and moral attitude, might well precipitate a new war. He insists, however, that the European nations, economically interdependent by necessity, can maintain adequate standards of living, levels of production and welfare of their peoples only through participation in a well-functioning world economy.

Germany, which before 1939 accounted for fully one-fourth of total European imports and exports, must be regarded as an integral part of the European economic picture, in the author's view.

The question is not one of going back to the status quo ante, he says. Restrictive economic policies, and particularly the bilateral, or barter, trading systems imposed by the Nazis must be supplanted by a multilateral international structure of free trade.

Russia, which over the period 1925-37 had only about 1.5 per cent of world imports and exports, must be brought into working co-operation with an expanding world economy, so that, in particular, high-cost grain production in Central Europe may give way to greater production of protective foods—fruits, meats and dairy products. High-cost ersatz production of oil and rubber should be suppressed, and extraction of metals should be encouraged where it will be most economical—aluminum in Yugoslavia, for instance.

The Nazi program for Europe was the antithesis of all this. There was no intention to foster an economically integrated continent, but only to organize it for the maximum benefit of the German race.

The occupation of Germany, the author says, should aim not merely at military control, but should be directed toward bringing a reshaped German economy into genuine co-operation with the rest of the world.

Reparations should be demanded, not in foreign exchange, but either directly in kind or in German currency, to be used for purchases of German goods within a definite time. They should furthermore be limited to 10 years, and no country should be permitted any claim of reparations beyond an amount of goods that country can absorb without disturbing its normal trade relations.

Some American Musical Favorites

"Sing for America," by Opal Wheeler. (E. F. Dutton & Co., New York.)

Outstanding illustrations by Gustaf Tenggren go far toward making this an excellent interpretation of 24 American songs. Those selected are the familiar and sentimental melodies, such as "Yankee Doodle," "Dixie," "My Old Kentucky Home," "Home on the Range" and "America the Beautiful." Pleasing stories about the origin of the songs accompany the music. The book should prove especially effective in giving younger people a glimpse into the colorful past out of which the nation's music grew.

WATERLEY ROOT

Will Adm. Leahy Testify for Petain?

MARSHAL PETAIN, as had been predicted, has asked that Adm. Leahy, former United States Ambassador to Vichy, be called as a witness at his forthcoming trial.

It may be that the Admiral—aid of his Government to one side or the other—will ponder the request carefully, before committing himself to the idea that the Admiral should testify. One Petain trial has already been held at Rome, in which Petain was prosecuting but found himself very quickly on the defensive—and there is more than a little likelihood that this one may do the same.

Petaim's purpose in calling Leahy is to try to prove that he was really working with the Axis all along. The danger is that the trial may demonstrate instead that he was actually working with the Germans and hoodwinking American representatives into believing the opposite. This is perhaps not demonstration which American diplomats would care to have made in court.

Petaim's Only Chance.

The direction which Petaim's defense must take is clear. There is only one possible angle. He will maintain that he saved France from worse tribulations by co-operation with the Germans and that, if he had not done so, they would have treated France even more severely than they did.

He will attempt to prove that his regime gave the minimum co-operation to Germany in exchange for the maximum consideration for France; or, at the worst, that this was his aim, and that if he failed to achieve his objective, it was the result of error, not treason.

Adm. Leahy fits into this picture of the defense because he will be asked to testify to the fact that the Vichy Government consistently repeated that the United States was being motivated by exactly this desire. But if Adm. Leahy does bear witness to this, it will not prove that this was Petaim's motive. It will only prove that he said it was his motive.

That will add nothing new to what is already known. It is no secret any longer that the Vichy regime did constantly represent itself to American emissaries as engaged in an elaborate deception of the Germans. But what one may ask, were the Germans doing while this comedy was going on? Were they too stupid to realize that they were being fooled? Of course, the Vichyites were telling them that they were dealing with Adm. Leahy, Pinckney Tuck, Robert Murphy, et al., in an elaborate deception of the Americans.

The Nazis Were Aided.

So all that Leahy's testimony could prove would be that Vichy represented its policy in regard to the Germans in talks with Americans in exactly the same fashion that it represented its policy in regard to the Germans in talks with the Germans. Which was the truth?

Since Vichy's simultaneous protestations of co-operation with both sides cancel each other out, the only test which remains is that of examining whether Marshal Petain threw the effective

How Did Petain Help Us?

What effective aid can Petain claim that he gave the United States? The answer has long been alleged that he saved the French colonies from the Germans, though the more accurate statement would be that he kept them from the Allies.

But the French Government has the stenographic record of the Cabinet meeting at which Petain advocated opening the North African airfields to the Germans; and it has also his letter of congratulation to Adm. Esteva on persuading Adm. Derrien to let the Germans into Tunisia without resistance, in accordance with Petaim's orders, issued at the same period when he was telling North African troops to fight the Allies.

It has also been alleged that Petain kept the French fleet out of German hands, but here again the real safeguard of the fleet was not the Vichy Government, but the sailors who manned the ships and who proved, when the Germans tried to take them, that they would scuttle them rather than give them up. Will Petain try to take credit for the scuttling?

A Damning Record.

According to rightist ex-Deputy Fernand-Laurent, once Mayor of Paris, Petain ordered the fleet to surrender to the Germans, but the precaution the Nazis themselves had taken, of cutting all telegraphic and telephonic communications with Toujan before they attacked, prevented his order from getting through.

The record is going to be a damning one for Petain. It is true that the State Department has little reputation left to save so far as its dealings with France are concerned, but if it wants to preserve even that pitiful remnant, it had better discover some reason why Adm. Leahy cannot testify.

His statement that the United States believed that Petain was co-operating with the Allies during the period when he was so manifestly supporting the Axis will not acquit Petain and it will convict American diplomacy of the most complete incompetence.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Senator LaFollette's Peace Suggestions

IN his long speech on the world organizations being shaped at San Francisco, Senator Robert M. LaFollette expressed the growing doubts of many people who hope with profound earnestness to see a world league formed that will embody not merely power, but faith as well.

Senator La Follette was, of course, an isolationist. He still believes that it was unnecessary for Americans to be involved in this war. But he denied, in the course of his speech, that he was a perfectionist rejecting all attempts at organization, and his insistence in his own conviction of the need for a league had the ring of sincerity. It seemed to me he put his finger on the real weakness of San Francisco.

Lip Service by Big Powers.

"I have reference to his belief that we must either have a democratic international organization set up to enforce a just peace which can be successfully enforced, and be willing to take the logical steps necessary to achieve those two objectives, or we will have to disregard the organization, even though we may join it, and go on with the program of imperialism, power politics, balances of power and military alliances. Such a course will produce the worst aspects of both policies, and none of the benefits of either."

That appears to be the course we are embarking on today. The big powers are giving lip service to a very limited form of world organization while all the time preparing the instruments of imperial expansion and rivalry as in the past. And, as Senator LaFollette pointed out, this is not Russia alone.

Argentina Is Fascist.

Those who declaim against the Soviet Union's go-it-alone policy should remember the Biblical injunction about pointing out the mote in your neighbor's eye when you ignore the beam in your own. We talk about having the greatest Navy and Air Force in the world. At the insistence of our Navy Department, the question of trusteeships has been blurred and confused so that we can keep strategic islands in the Pacific while maintaining a fictitious "trusteeship."

To buttress what Senator LaFollette said on the Tinian Island, the Senate came the story, through a

COL. STONE DECORATED FOR WEATHER SERVICE

WAC Sergeant Wins Bronze Star for Achievement in Northern France.

Col. William S. Stone, director of weather services for the Army Air Forces in the Pacific theater, has been presented the Bronze Star for meritorious service during military operations from last August through April. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Stone, live at 410 Emmet avenue, Ferguson, and his wife, Mrs. Myra Stone, lives at Cambria, Calif.

WAC Sgt. Helen D. Grutsch, telephone switchboard supervisor in Paris, has received the Bronze Star for meritorious service in the battle for northern France with the Signal Corps, her mother, Mrs. Florence Redmond, 4462 Wallace street, has been informed by the War Department.

Pfc. Harry E. Hauser, 32, ground crewman with the Air Transport Command in Athens, has received the Bronze Star for meritorious service. His wife, Mrs. Nadine H. Hauser, lives at 108 West Lockwood avenue, Webster Groves.

Sgt. Herman H. Kettler, an infantryman, has been presented the Bronze Star for heroic action while serving with the First Army in Germany. His wife lives at 5037 Claxton avenue.

Sgt. Bernard J. Hausbach, an infantryman, has received the Bronze Star for heroic achievement in aiding three wounded comrades during the battle for Fort Stotsenburg, Luzon. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Hausbach, Bend, Ill.

Lt. (jg) Clarence E. Snay, 22, pilot of a carrier-based Navy Hellcat, has received the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal with six Gold Stars. He is the son of Mrs. Katherine Snay, 1338 Bell avenue.

Lt. John P. Scherer, 22, has received the Air Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters and the Purple Heart for wounds suffered in action in the European theater. He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. H. T. Scherer, 226 Spencer road, Webster Groves.

Aviation Machinist's Mate Donald I. Pollard, 22, crewman on a Navy search plane, has received the Air Medal with two Gold Stars. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Pollard, 3506 Missouri avenue.

Staff Sgt. Kenneth A. Ponte, an aerial gunner, has received the Air Medal and the Purple Heart. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Ponte, 3430 Keokuk street.

Staff Sgt. Victor V. Mitchell, surgical technician in a medical air evacuation squadron, has received the Air Medal. His mother, Mrs. Clarence Shepherd, lives at 1523 Penrose street.

Staff Sgt. Jerome J. Venker Jr., surgical technician in a medical air evacuation squadron, has received the Air Medal. His parents live at 947 Bellerive boulevard.

Sgt. Paul G. L. Seibel, 22, an aerial gunner, has received the Purple Heart. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Seibel, 5761 Milentz avenue.

Pfc. Elliott B. Roy, 34, an infantryman, has received the Purple Heart for wounds suffered in action on Okinawa. His wife, Mrs. Henrietta Roy, lives at 2346 Pennsylvania avenue, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Roy, live at Perryville, Mo.

Pfc. Joseph McCauley, an infantryman, has received the Purple Heart. He formerly lived at 1117A Cass avenue.

Marine Sgt. Kenneth G. Bruce, 22, has received a Gold Star in lieu of a second award of the Purple Heart for wounds suffered last July on the Tinian Island in the Marianas, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Bruce, 1111 Rutger street, have learned. Sgt. Bruce was wounded earlier on Saipan.

MISS ANN VAN DYKE, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Rainey Van Dyke, 2101 South Warsaw road, is telephoning her close friends to invite them to her wedding June 23 to Robert Loftus Breerton, apprentice seaman, U.S.N.R. Guests will remain for an informal reception after the ceremony, which will be performed at 8 o'clock at the Van Dyke home by the Rev. Dr. Benjamin Franklin Hall.

Mrs. Merrell Clark Jr. and Miss Georgann Beazley, cousin of the bride-elect, will come from New York to serve as matron of honor and bridesmaid, respectively. The groom's attendants will be completed by Miss Mary Elizabeth Stockstrom and Miss Phyllis McPheeters.

The prospective bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Arthur Breerton, 11 Countrywide lane, will serve as best man. The ceremony will be held at the Washington University School of Medicine under the Navy V-12 program. He has not yet completed his list of attendants.

Miss Rose Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Strahan E. Adams, 11 Washington terrace, departed Thursday for Washington to spend three weeks as the guest of her brother and sister-in-law, Lt. and Mrs. Stephen S. Adams Jr. (Sue Ricker), Lt. Adams, a Naval Reserve aviator, is now in Washington with the Bureau of Aeronautics.

Miss Adams' brother-in-law and sister, Lt. and Mrs. William Fraser, are the parents of their second daughter, Ann Mary, born last Monday. Mrs. Fraser, the former Miss Minette Adams, has been living with her parents since Lt. Fraser has been in England with the Eighth Air Force.

Graduation Exercises.

SEVERAL commencements are scheduled for the week among the exercises at Fontbonne College this morning, Maryville College this afternoon, Taylor School Thursday afternoon, and Mary Institute Friday morning. Activities at Mary Institute will begin at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning with class day in the school auditorium, and will end with the alumnae luncheon after graduation.

Peggy Campbell and Sarah Chivley are co-chairmen of the class day program which is built around the song "Ain't Misbehavin'." Song and dance skits will portray school life through 12 years, and will include the class history and prophecy.

The auxiliary board of Barnard Free Skin and Cancer Hospital will meet at the home of Mrs. James M. Francis, 10 Lenox place, tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. After the business meeting there will be a memorial service for the former chairman, Mrs. Emilie de Mun Francis. The new chairman and two vice chairmen, their names to be announced at the meeting, will be installed.

MRS. JOSEPHINE VON PHUL FUNERAL AT 9 A.M. TOMORROW

Funeral services for Mrs. Josephine Throckmorton von Phul, member of an old St. Louis family who died yesterday of infirmities of age at her home, 5863 Plymouth avenue, will be at 9 a.m. tomorrow at St. Rose's Catholic Church, 1001 Goodfellow boulevard, with burial in Calvary cemetery. Mrs. Von Phul, 88 years old, was the widow of Philip von Phul, son of a pioneer St. Louis merchant, who died two years ago.

Mrs. Von Phul, daughter of Capt. Joseph Throckmorton, Mississippi river steamboat owner and captain, was educated at the old St. Vincent's Seminary, formerly at Grand boulevard and Lucas avenue. In 1931 she was a member of a committee of the International Federation of Catholic Alumni which appealed to Pope Pius XI for the canonization of Mother Elizabeth Seton, founder of the American Sisters of Charity, who conducted the seminary.

Surviving Mrs. Von Phul are two daughters, Miss Grace Reading von Phul, of the Plymouth avenue address; Mrs. Louis T. Hall, 225 Spencer road, Webster Groves; a stepdaughter, Mrs. Charles E. Michel, 5720 Julian avenue; a stepson, Dr. Philip von Phul, Seattle; and three grandsons: Lt. Col. Louis Hall Jr., Cpl. Philip von Phul Hall, and George H. Hall, a member of the Post-Dispatch news staff.

Derby Still Is a Wide Open Race.

If inclined to lay a piece of change on the Kentucky Derby, you probably feel a bit frustrated this morning. . . . That's because past performance dope has been scant. . . . And most of it unconvincing. . . . Next Saturday the glamour horse race of the season will be run at Churchill Downs. . . . Because of the four months' racing blackout much of the preliminary form that gives horse players ideas has been lacking. . . . We therefore approach Saturday's event with some confidence, except for the fact that Eastern candidates have more reasonably clarified their chances than have Western eligibles. . . . The three Eastern standouts are Jeep, Hoop Jr. and Alexis. . . . And if they had to choose from this trio, most form followers would name Jeep. . . . He won his first start, a sprint, in fast time. . . . A week later he worked the Derby distance in 2:07 and that's a good time for any race horse which is being prepared for a 10-furlong route. . . . He came back off this workout and won his division of the Wood Memorial in a canter.

On the basis of performance, Jeep seems to rate the East's best chance, although Hoop Jr. and Alexis both have creditable records. . . . It could be that track conditions will determine the winner, if it comes down to a decision between these three. The Blue Grass Stakes, run Saturday at Churchill Downs, leaves us all in something of a quandary. . . . Out of the clouds came Darby Dieppe, winner of the final big trial for the Derby. . . . Fighting Step and Air Sailor finished two-three behind him. . . . It's hardly likely that owners will send their candidates into another hard contest in advance of next Saturday's important event.

It's still a wide open race, worth a lot of money, with owners hoping that conditions on the day of the race will exactly suit their respective candidates. . . . If the track turns out fast you might guess the race Jeop, Alexis and Pot o' Luck and not be far off the beam. . . . But before going down on the line as to this selection we'll await returns from the last workouts of the eligibles.

Oh yes. . . . About this Darby Dieppe. . . . He was sent up to us from Louisville as a tip. . . . He's by Foray II-La Croma, by Solaro, and is owned by John Galbreath. . . . He had a fair season as a two-year-old. . . . He started 13 times, won twice as second six times and third once. . . . He was out of the money only four times. . . . His ancestry is fair and he may or may not have what it takes to be a Derby winner.

You can't always figure, in the world of equines or man, that a great grand-daddy is going to sponsor a great grandson. . . . Genealogy, as concerns horses, should be regarded as helpful in general but not in specific instances.

Cooke and Lewis Win Coast Double Title

LA JOLLA, Calif., June 4 (AP)—Elwood Cooke and Mory Lewis, Los Angeles, rule today as Pacific Coast doubles champions through their 8-6, 6-3, 5-6, 6-1 victory yesterday over Harry Buttmer and Jim Livingston, San Francisco, in the final of the fifty-fifth annual Pacific Coast tennis championships at the La Jolla Beach and Tennis Club.

The women's doubles title went to Louise Brough, Beverly Hills, and Margaret Osborne, San Francisco, national doubles champions, who won from Gertrude Moran and Jane Stanton Gallagher, both of Los Angeles, 10-8, 6-2.

Jockey, Reported in Critical Condition

WILMINGTON, Del. June 4 (AP)—Jockey R. Flocchi, injured yesterday when his horse, Strolling Don, fell in the eighth race at Delaware Park, was reported in critical condition yesterday at the Delaware Hospital here.

Dr. W. H. Speer said Flocchi suffered a brain concussion.

Powell Changes His Mind, Rejoins Club

WASHINGTON, June 4 (AP)—Jake Powell's revolt against the Washington Senators over being benched didn't last long.

The veteran outfielder walked out in a huff before game time Saturday, saying he was "through," but he was back on the job for yesterday's doubleheader with the Chicago White Sox.

Boxing Trainer Dies

YONKERS, N. Y., June 4 (AP)—Louis Eberling, 54, known in boxing circles as Louis (Dutch) Fink, collapsed of a heart attack while visiting a friend last night and died shortly afterward. Fink, who lived in New York City with his sister, was trainer for Gene Tunney and Tony Canzoneri when they were heavyweight and lightweight champions, respectively.

Legion Card Called Off

An amateur boxing show planned for tonight at American Legion Garden, 4822 Olive, and sponsored by the Walter Hatzfeld Post No. 35, has been postponed indefinitely. It was originally scheduled for last Monday night, also being postponed then on account of the weather.

Failure to Sacrifice Hurts.

Failure of the Browns to sacrifice on two occasions cost a victory. In the ninth inning, McQuinn opened with a double, Gene Moore tried once to bunt and fouled. He swung on the next pitch and fouled, then sent a fly to Charley Burns in right field. McQuinn tried to make third and was doubled.

Shirley hit to Kell in the next inning and was safe on the third baseman's fumble. Gutteridge tried to sacrifice, popped to Berry and Shirley was lucky to scramble back to first. Burns followed with a double, putting Shirley on third and Gerkin replaced Berry. Kreevich lined straight into Kell's hands and he stepped on third doubling Shirley.

Gutteridge started the first game with a home run against Russ Christopher on the second pitch and that was the only run the Browns got. Gutteridge, Christopher yielded but five safeties as he gained his eighth triumph of the year against two defeats, while Nelson Potter lost his fourth contest, although he pitched pretty good ball and gave eight safeties. Two bad plays helped to beat the Browns. One was a fielding error by Stephens, again on third base, in the fourth inning which gave the Athletics their first run. With the bases full and one out, Kell obliged by bouncing straight to Stephens, who, with a double play in front of him, via home to first, chose to make the play at second base instead. He threw wild to Gutteridge and all runners were safe, Estellela scoring.

Bobby Estellela opened the home half of the eighth with his fourth homer of the year. Siebert was safer when Potter dropped McQuinn's throw. George doubled

Brownie Notes.

It was a chilly, cloudy day, but the attendance was announced as 25,151.

The crowd started to chant in the fifth inning of the second "We want Gray" and kept it up for several innings until the tightness of the competition caused the fans to forget the one-armed player.

The Athletics were blanked in the first 21 innings of the series and the Browns were scoreless for the last 21.

Al Hollingsworth or Jack Jankucki probably will pitch the opener in Chicago.

ARMY SHOE DEMANDS HEAVIER THIS YEAR

30 Million Pairs Needed in 1945—Supplies Below Safety Margin.

WASHINGTON, June 4 (AP).—Under Secretary of War Patterson reported yesterday the Army will need 30,000,000 pairs of shoes in 1945, the heaviest demand of any war year.

In a lengthy analysis of Army shoe requirements, Patterson said V-E day brought no change in Army demands for leather and there is no prospect of a reduction before the end of 1945.

Just prior to the end of the war against Germany, he said, the Army was using up shoes faster than they could be made, and now stocks are below the "safety margin" of a 90-day supply.

The 30,000,000 pairs of shoes include 28,152,000 for the Army itself; 698,000 Army-style shoes for the Navy; 848,000 for the Philippine Army and 1,288,000 for the French Army. In 1944, the Army shoe requirements totaled 29,716,000, with about 5 per cent going to consumers other than the Army itself.

Patterson explained the increased demand by saying that supply lines to the Pacific are longer and more shoes will be in transit; and that shoes wear out faster in the Pacific than in any other area.

The average soldier in the Southwest Pacific wears out about five pairs of shoes a year, as compared to four in the European theater, about three and one-half in the China-Burma-India area and two in the United States.

Patterson said there are ample manufacturing facilities to produce more shoes for civilians, but that a shortage of cattle hides is responsible for the scarcity. Civilian shoe production between 1936 and 1940 averaged 350,000,000, but dropped last year to 260,000,000 pairs.

you able to keep these promises, Koiso?"

Concluding, the Captain tells the Japanese:

"Your future lies in your own hands. You can choose between a wasteful, unclean death for many of your forces or a peace with honor."

Truman's statement, which promised a steadily increasing intensity in American blows to bring destruction to Japan's industries, shipping and everything supporting military activity, is repeated in another Zacharias broadcast. This message points out Japanese failures as revealed in the imperial high command's own communications, and cites the question raised in the eighty-sixth session of the United Nations.

"How can one be sure of Japanese victory after the loss of Iwo Jima?"

Then Zacharias says:

"We attacked Hollandia with 200 ships, Saipan with 600 ships, Iwo Jima with 800, Luzon with 1000 and Okinawa with 1400 ships. Thus within the last year we increased the strength of our attack against you seven times in the same year we landed in Europe and defeated Germany."

Flood of Leaflets.

To these broadcasts and the deluge of pamphlets falling on Tokyo, Yokohama, Kobe, Osaka, Kyoto and Nagoya, Japanese radio reaction has been vehement. On May 21 the Japanese home radio instructed the people of Tokyo to deliver the leaflets immediately to the nearest police station and promised punishment for negligence.

The Nipponese radio said the leaflets "revealed the Americans' shallow thinking and amounts to nothing more than submission of the enemy's many ideas which are ignorant and arrogant."

Numerous other American leaflets cast on Japanese cities were illustrated and referred to American war production, deception of Japanese leaders, hardships of the Japanese people, the decline of their purchasing power and other factors resulting from the war.

HIROHITO'S MINISTER QUILTS BECAUSE B-29S HIT PALACE

NEW YORK, June 4 (AP).—The Tokyo radio announced today that Tetsuo Matsuura, former Ambassador to the United States, had resigned as Minister of the Imperial Household and had been succeeded by Sotaro Ishiwata, former Finance Minister.

Matsuura was appointed to the post in March, 1938. The office is charged with conduct of affairs pertaining to the imperial household and is outside the regular government administrative system, being unaffected by any cabinet changes.

A later broadcast said informed circles in Tokyo attributed Matsuura's resignation to the fact that he "held himself responsible for the partial destruction by fire of the imperial palace" in a Superfortress raid on Tokyo May 26.

TWO GIRLS WHO TOOK BABY HELD FOR JUVENILE COURT

PHILADELPHIA, June 4 (AP).—Two young girls who took a 3-month-old baby which later was found dead of a broken neck were ordered held today for juvenile court.

Irene Jones, 15, and her sister, Janet, 11, were arraigned at the house of detention on charges of abduction and theft of a baby from a woman in connection with the death Thursday of Thomas V. Ripley Jr., son of Mrs. Barbara Ripley.

The girls admitted to a policeman that they took the baby from his carriage at his home while his mother was shopping, that they placed him in the stolen carriage and played with him before hiding him under some bushes in a vacant lot.

BRITISH MAJOR HERE, TELLS OF DESERT WAR

Compares Tank Battles in African and Italian Campaigns.

The Italian and North African desert campaigns furnished an excellent contrast between two extremes of tank warfare, Maj. Amyas Chichester of the British First Royal Horse Artillery said today on his arrival in St. Louis for a series of talks under sponsorship of the British Army.

Maj. Chichester joined his unit as commander of a battery of eight self-propelled guns in June, 1942, during the German advance to El Alamein and, except for a brief interval during which it was refitted, remained with it until shortly before V-E day.

"The desert fighting was open and fluid," he said. "There were no roads or irregularities of terrain to hamper us, and the battle was a matter of one general's ingenuity against the other's. Fifty or 100 tanks at a time would engage in tactical maneuvers and battles. In Italy, mountains and valleys kept the tanks on the roads, and the enemy kept us slowed down by blowing every bridge. Instead of battles between tanks it was a matter of tanks against prepared positions."

"Both campaigns were well worth the expenditure of men and materiel, however, because they kept a tremendous number of enemy troops tied down that otherwise would have been fighting against our forces in the west. We took an enormous toll of German equipment, too."

His tightest spot during the war was the morning after the self-propelled gun he commanded broke through German mine fields at El Alamein on June 23, 1943, Maj. Chichester said. When day broke his unit found itself in the middle of German anti-tank defenses, only part of which had been destroyed by the barrage of the previous night. Two of his guns were wrecked before the Nazis were silenced.

Maj. Chichester holds the British Military Cross, for which he has not yet received the formal citation. It was awarded for action in Italy, when his guns knocked out a powerful German position at Lake Trasimene in a 36-hour battle. He was wounded in the engagement. Throughout the Italian campaign the British Eighth Army, to which he was attached, and the American Fifth Army, co-ordinated remarkably well, he said.

While in the St. Louis area he will make four talks before civic groups and one by radio.

honest desire to understand and co-operate with the Soviet Union, lest a clash of interests develop which would lead to a century of antagonism and struggle."

Sir Stafford was Laborite Minister of Aircraft Production in the wartime coalition government and now seeks re-election to Parliament.

He said in a speech the British point of view must be presented with "dignity and strength but we must, too, make it our particular care not to say or do rash and impetuous things that are, or reasonably appear to be, hostile to the Soviet Union."

The former cabinet minister declared that the Soviet Union was suspicious that Britain might "relapse after the war into that uneasy and almost hostile association which marked the prewar relationships. At the same time he said, many persons in England feared Russia would overrun eastern Europe or impose her form of government on countries at her border."

"I believe these fears are unfounded," Cripps said. "But we must remember that in Russian eyes there are two alternative forms of security for their country."

"One consists of a strong international organization in which all countries co-operate with friendship, which will secure Russia, as other countries against free aggression."

"The other is the sphere of influence and control, which, failing a wider system of security, will at least prevent neighboring states from being used as jumping off ground for future aggression, as they have been used many times in the past."

Greer Garson

Personality Sketch Of Hollywood Star

By Sidney Skolsky

GREER GARSON, who is regarded as the typical Englishwoman, is really Irish. And in England, when she first made good on the London stage, they thought she came from America and referred to her as "that American find."

GREER GARSON

Decision," her leading man is Gregory Peck. She has now discarded the bustle and Walter Pidgeon.

Her real name is Garson, she hails from County Down in the north of Ireland, and was born Sept. 29, 1908. She is 5 feet 5 inches tall, weighs 112 pounds, has beautiful red hair, flashing green eyes and an attractive white skin. She is really a Technicolor symphony, and she doesn't require Technicolor. She has shapely gums, really! She was first destined to be a schoolmarm. For a while she did tutor Cambridge students for their entrance examinations. On her own she won scholarships to the University of London and to Grenoble University in France. She speaks French fluently.

SHE MADE her initial appearance on the London stage in "Golden Arrow." Jobless, she was dining alone one night at the University Women's Club. Sylvia Thompson, the novelist, introduced herself. "I hear you are an actress. I have just written a play, and you are ideal for the part. Will you take it?"

Of course she did. Laurence Olivier was the leading man and director. The play was a flop. She was a hit. She played an American girl.

It was when she was in the play, "Old Music," that L. B. Mayer, who was visiting London, went backstage and signed her. She came to Hollywood, strolled around the studio for a year, and never appeared in a picture. It was when she was about ready to return to England that she was given the role of "Mrs. Chips" in "Goodbye, Mr. Chips." She had traveled from London to Hollywood, and then had to return to London to play in an American movie.

ON THE SET she is quiet and reserved. When she finishes a scene, she goes to her neatly furnished portable dressing room. She always has tea at 4 in the afternoon. She comes on the set letter perfect, knowing her lines.

She doesn't display any temperamental on the set. If she has any objections, she debates with the director or producer in the privacy of her dressing room or their office.

She doesn't go to many Hollywood parties. She is amazingly shy. She likes small informal parties and prefers to give them herself.

She is married to Richard Ney. They met while they were making "Mrs. Miniver." They discovered that they liked the same things, and were discussing books, music and poetry. He is a superb dancer, and she loves to dance. The romance was on. He is now Lt. Richard Ney, and is on active duty with the Navy in the Pacific.

SHE IS NOT interested in clothes except for decorative effect. Her favorite colors are jade-green and blue. She sticks to solid primary colors. She doesn't go in for much jewelry. She is stunning in a red dress.

In the way of food, her tastes are not fancy. She has a love for Irish stew and potatoes. She drinks buttermilk by the quart. Her favorite tonic is lime juice.

She has a dignified house, not too large, in Bel Air. There is a huge living room, with bleached oak-paneled walls and a big fireplace. The rug is jade-colored. There is a music alcove for her two pianos. She plays well, and enjoys playing duets with her friends. She keeps the "Oscar," her prize possession, on the desk in her den.

SHE SELDOM wears a hat, and most always carries a handkerchief, which she struggles with. She adores receiving tiny gifts, but is always thrilled when she receives any gift.

She washes her hair herself, and always gives it a hundred strokes with a stiff brush before going to bed at night and upon getting up in the morning. Instead of spending money in a beauty parlor, as the average girl does, she saves this money and treats herself to a bottle of champagne and uses a cup of it to rinse her hair.

She sleeps in a medium-sized bed, and always sleeps on a small pillow. No matter where she sleeps, she always takes this pillow with her. She always wears a nightgown, generally jade-green or blue, and they are always flimsy. She is very attractive.

"I SAID, 'REMEMBER ME? I INTRODUCED YOU TO YOUR WIFE—AND THEN HE SOCKS ME!'"

Germans Clean Up Battered Capital

NEVER A Dull Moment Department: We have licked one enemy and the other is staggering. But gimme-gangs in Washington are going all-out fighting price control. . . . They succeed, inflation will nullify all our military triumphs. . . . Politics make pretty speeches about our honored dead on Memorial day. However, many politicians spend the rest of the year obstructing ideals for which our soldiers died. . . . Add epitaphs for Hitler: He started at the bottom—and was kicked there. . . . Statesman Stanley Baldwin's observation is worth remembering: "Wars would end—if those who died in them could return."

RADIO'S FINEST dramatic series, "Words at War," will be shelved because it stepped on influential toes. It is a brilliant example of a public service program. B-29s are flying in the air for the same reason this program was on the air: To fight for democratic ideals. We hope FCC Chief Paul Porter will give this his attention. . . . Communists in America have again changed their propaganda blab. Their propaganda line is as crooked as their political tactics. Americomms have done more to strain relations between Uncle Sam and the Soviets than any Nazi propagandist. . . . Deadly parallel: Hitler's outlying outfit drol about being "nationalists." A few months before Vermin was defeated Hitler bragged about being a "nationalist." A word we coined many months ago aptly describes those trouble-makers: Nazi-nationalists.

STALE ORGANS THAT have disparaged gossip columnists are now running stories revealing the intimate romantic scandals of Nazi leaders without deleting any of the spicy details. My, my. . . . Historical sidelight: After the last war we had differences with France which made many Americans forget Germany was our enemy. Now the same routine is being repeated with Russia in the place of France. . . . Item from a newsmag: "A few of the German Nazis caught last week distinguished themselves by admitting that they were Nazis." Distinguished?????

A PIC MAG OPINES that punishing war criminals isn't as vital as establishing a respect for law and order in Germany. We can't think of a better way to attain respect for law and order than punishing killers who have no respect for it. America upholds law and order—but we also execute murderers. . . . Note to those who are coddling Nazi leaders: Germany once put Hitler in "jail," but treated him like a star boarder. While there, Hitler penned "Mein Kampf" and blueprinted plans for polluting Germany and the world with Nazism.

DEBATES ABOUT EDUCATING humanity to preserve peace recall philosopher William James' retort when asked to define the chief aim of education. James stated: "To know a good man when you see one." . . . Add literary lace from a mag: "Newspapers are like women. Why? Because they have forms, back-numbers are not in demand, they always have the last word, they are worth looking over, they have a great deal of influence, you can't believe everything they say, there's a small demand for the bold-faced type, they're much thinner than before. Every man should have one and not borrow his neighbor's."

CASE RECORDS

By Dr. George W. Crone

CASE F-285: Bill Toner, aged about 38, is the editor of the Herald at Anderson, Ind. Recently he wrote a challenging editorial in which he suggested a single language in Europe as a psychological method for welding the races there into a more homogenous group. Psychologists will heartily endorse Toner's discerning recommendation, for it is a single language in the United States that is largely responsible for the social unity existing between the diverse racial backgrounds of Americans.

Here we have every racial group in Europe represented in large numbers. But we don't see New York State pitted in warfare against Pennsylvania, or Minnesota against California. Why? Largely because we feel alike. And this impression is created by our ease in understanding each other.

A UNIFORM LANGUAGE permits us to read the same books and magazines hot off the presses. We attend the same movies and religious meetings. Nobody mutters behind our back in mysterious language which makes us grow suspicious that we are being laughed at, ridiculed or plotted against.

"Divide and rule" is the typical motto of dictatorships, which soon launch wars. Different languages certainly promote this division. "Unify and be a Republic" is the formula of a lasting democracy, that thus promotes peace.

FOR HUNDREDS of years our militarists, diplomats and economists have vainly tried to protect nations from war, but every new generation gets embroiled. Maybe it would be a wholesome change to include some practical psychologists like Editor Toner, and some clergymen at the peace tables.

Surely they could do no more harm than the militarists, diplomats and economists, for the latter have sent us into wars as fast as we have been able to get fully re-armed after the previous blood letting. The economic angles have failed, so why not get down to fundamentals and take steps to insure a REAL peace that will last more than 25 years?

SINCE THE English language is so widely used, and the two leading democracies employ it, suppose Germany were taught within the next generation to speak English. Then Britain and Germany would be linguistically closely knit. Closer co-operation would doubtless follow.

Without resort to force, Czechoslovakia became to a large degree an English speaking nation within 20 years after World War I. Germany could do the same within another generation.

Economical Menus for Tomorrow

By Meta Given

A FEW years ago we could put broccoli into our menus only from early fall until late winter. But now we can eat it the year around especially if the market where we shop carries frozen vegetables. Broccoli is one of the green vegetables that comes through the freezing process with practically all its fine qualities intact. That is fortunate for several reasons. It is easily grown, it flourishes over large areas in this country, and it is one of our most valuable vegetables from a nutritional point of view on account of the vitamins A and C and for its rich supply of iron and calcium. Then it is an aristocrat in appearance. Its beautifully flower-like head and its lovely green tender stalks are of great tenderness and beauty, it is an irresistible vegetable. The sauce we suggest serving over the broccoli will enable you to have more respect for it than ever.

Mayonnaise Topping for Broccoli. One-half cup mayonnaise, one teaspoon lemon rind, two tablespoons lemon juice, one tablespoon finely sliced green onions, one-fourth teaspoon paprika, one-eighth teaspoon salt. Combine all ingredients, place in top of double boiler and cook over boiling water for 7-10 minutes, or until mixture is hot. Serve over any vegetable such as broccoli, cauliflower, green beans, etc. Makes one-half cupful.

Breakfast: Orange juice, ready-to-eat cereal, toasted sweet rolls. Lunch: Spinach and egg salad, hot, pan-fried luncheon meat, whole-wheat toast, fruit milkshake. Dinner: Shoulder lamb chops, mashed potatoes, broccoli with mayonnaise topping, grated raw carrot salad, fresh berries with custard sauce.

Fruit Milk Shake.

One and a half cups evaporated milk, one and a half cups cold water, two and one-fourth cups grape or berry juice from stewed or canned fruit or three cups juice from stewed dried prunes or a combination of fruit juices. All ingredients should be cold. Mix milk and water, add fruit juice and stir vigorously. The addition of three-fourths of a teaspoon of lemon juice brings out the flavor. If unsweetened grape juice is used, add a little sugar. Yields four generous servings.

Your Stars

WHAT TO EXPECT TOMORROW

General Tendencies—The air will be full of electricity tomorrow, try to keep it out of your conversations with other people. Quarrels will be over misunderstandings, but can create lasting injuries to feelings. If you are about to make a trip, then be sure that your reservations are in order, that no mishaps occur with baggage or loss of tickets. At this time small things can easily go wrong and cause much later discomfort.

If Tomorrow Is Your Birthday. The surprises and delays which lurk around your plans for 1945 and 1946 can be very distasteful to you. In sudden changes you should not act without due consideration and possibly after asking for legal advice, since serious matters seem to be at stake. By no means jump into new ventures during the fall of this year; you will be sorry if you do. You may want to make some new conclusions for myself. They are comforting. In the new life which begins when we leave the body, we follow the same activities which we most desired here on earth. If those aims were lowly, then our future lives will be equally lowly; if good, then we will progress. Apparently the rate of progress is greater and easier than it is possible here. There is nothing to fear in this great adventure unless we have made it for ourselves.

Cancer—Common-Sense Medicine

EVERYBODY knows what cancer means, but everybody does not know that most early cancer cases can be cured. Advanced cancer is in the majority and whereas some of these cases may be cured, the percentage is low. Many can be materially helped, and in almost all but the extreme cases may be aided to a greater or lesser degree. Knowing this to be true, the problem then resolves itself into the importance of early recognition and treatment to get the most effective results. Radiation, X-ray and surgery alone or in combination offers excellent combative measures. The medical profession is armed with the science and skill to reduce this enemy to a minimum, if only they can attack before too much involvement of the local area has begun and certainly before distant areas have become secondarily involved.

THE MEDICAL profession is thoroughly in agreement on the pathology and treatment of cancer, with slight differences of opinion as to the etiology. The treatment is standardized and generally accepted by the medical profession. My object is to impress on the layman in a common-sense manner the importance of seeking early medical opinion and rejecting any haphazard method of examination and diagnosis. In the case of the latter, topical applications to the suspected area instead of biopsy specimen is to be condemned. I mean by biopsy specimen the removing of a small section of the involved area for microscopic and pathological study. This will immediately tell you if the cancer is benign or malignant.

Symptoms vary according to the location of the area involved. For example, blood in the urine calls attention to the urinary tract, vaginal bleeding to the female organs, a lump in the breast to that organ; in fact any organ suspicious of a growth or ulceration or abnormal bleeding should draw attention to cancer. Pain, loss of weight, and anemia, are some of the symptoms suggesting advanced cancer, especially if blood is associated. Rectal bleeding calls for detailed study. In fact blood from any organ is the most common and the one symptom out of many that demands vigorous and investigative study.

As I view the cancer problem two things are essential for accomplished results: 1. Do not delay consultation with your doctor through fear of wishful thinking, as an early diagnosis is essential. 2. Reject any haphazard treatment such as medicine by mouth or topical application, and insist on a detailed study of your case which should include biopsy of the involved area, and in the case of organs involved where biopsy is impracticable, study with X-ray and other instruments of diagnostic precision is indicated.

DR. EDWARD WHITE ROBERTSON.

My Day -o- By Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK, Sunday. I HAVE a letter in my mail which shows a bit of shortsightedness that we should take note of and explain very promptly. The writer, evidently someone with boys in the service, feels that people who have worked in war plants—where before the war they were farmers, or household workers, or perhaps mothers of families who stayed at home—should all be urged to return to their original employment and should not receive unemployment compensation. I don't believe that men or women will have to be urged to return to their former work. I think one predominant trait of the American people is that they prefer to work than to sit idle. By and large, we do not like receiving money and sitting in idleness unless we are ill, tired out or cannot find work. In this last case, unemployment insurance is not only a godsend to the unemployed, but a godsend to the economy of the country as a whole.

THAT IS the point I want to bring out today. Unemployment insurance is not a plan just for the benefit of the people who happen to be out of work, or who do not want to work, as certain people seem to feel may happen. It is a plan to keep our whole economy from starting on a downward spiral. If many people stop buying, there is no market for anyone's goods. I think mothers will go back to their homes and, where they have small children, it will be better for the children. Many people want to work for patriotic reasons or because they had debts they wanted to pay off—perhaps a mortgage on the farm—and they wanted to meet the postwar period in a stable financial condition. That was the reason why many farmers went to work in shipyards or in war plants. In the days when they couldn't sell what they grew, they had to incur debts and mortgage their farms. War work gave them an opportunity to get rid of the debt, and they took it, as they should. But often they put in long hours at home, after the war work was done, to keep the farm going, and even the younger children helped.

TO DENY unemployment insurance to war workers, however, would be a very unwise move. Every citizen of the country, including our returning service men, depends for a livelihood on factories, farms and businesses going at full tilt. Our service men must find work to do. Unless people are able to buy food and clothing and goods of all kinds, the reconstruction period will be a very bad period indeed and may even start us on a new depression. Anyone who went through the early thirties can hardly wish to see those conditions return.

President Truman has done a wise thing, from the economic standpoint of the country as a whole, in advocating more generous unemployment insurance. "Can't here you," returned the old man. Depew's voice rose to a shout. "I say that you have beautiful bells here in Savannah," he belatedly. "It's no use," said the gaffer. "I could probably hear what you were saying if it wasn't for them gold-durned bells!" Apropos of sound effects, Oliver Herford, the great humorist, and famous military man were joint guests of honor at a banquet. The hosts suddenly announced, "Mr. Oliver Herford will now improvise a poem in honor of the occasion." Herford, a modest and retiring man, shriveled in his chair. "Oh, no," he protested. "Have the general fire a cannon."

Try and Stop Me By Bennett Cerf

CHAUNCEY DEPEW used to tell the story about how he was sitting in a Savannah park one Sunday morning, listening to the church bells for which the town is famous. "Wonderful bells," said Depew to an old gaffer sitting beside him. "What's that?" said the other, supping his hand over one ear. "I said the bells here sound wonderful," said Depew in a louder voice. "Can't here you," returned the old man. Depew's voice rose to a shout. "I say that you have beautiful bells here in Savannah," he belatedly. "It's no use," said the gaffer. "I could probably hear what you were saying if it wasn't for them gold-durned bells!"

My OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

Dear Martha Carr:

I AM a girl in my teens and like a certain boy very much and he also likes me. The trouble is the girls I know who attend his school all run after him, and they are always telling him things about me which aren't true. Then they run back to me and tell stories about him. I never believe the stuff they tell me, but am sure he is beginning to believe what they say against me, for he doesn't seem to like me as much as he used to. There is one girl in particular who is running after him very hard. What can I do about her and about the stories the boy is believing about me?

GIG.

You might as well learn how to stand up to a little competition now as ever, for a gal meets with it all her life. If you observe carefully these girls who run after your boy friend you will observe how not to act—that is unless you crave to lose him. Talking against another girl doesn't usually gain the talker much favor, either. If the lad appears to believe what is falsely said against you, then he isn't a friend worthy of the name, so why bother about him? If all these girls competing for your boy friend's favor, and all this tale bearing are too much of a nervous strain, why not compromise on a boy friend in your own school, where you can keep an eye on him and on all the attractive girls as well, and know first hand what's what?

Dear Martha Carr:

THERE IS A certain boy I've known for five years. Since the first time I met him I've liked him very much, and know I always will. We are most congenial and have wonderful times together. He has taken me to his home and his mother and I have become good friends. We went to school together and went steady for two years, and I believe he knows that any time he wants to ask me for a date the answer will always be "yes." He seems to enjoy my company these days when he's with me, but when away forgets my existence completely. Do you think he's too sure of himself? I haven't seen him now for some little time. His mother has invited me to come to her house and seems anxious for me to. I'm afraid if I don't go I'll hurt her feelings, and if I do he'll think I'm running after him. She has suggested the three of us go to a show or some other entertainment some time, so I know she must like me. How can I be sure that he still does? What shall I do?

BROKEN HEARTED.

If you give the boy the impression that you park by the family phone waiting for him to call, and pass up dates hoping he may decide to drop by I would say definitely you have let him become too sure of himself. He has the impression that he can see you when he likes and you'll always be eager for his attention. When he has no yen to pay you any mind you simply don't exist. You will do well to give him some competition. That might make him sit up and take notice. Much as you like his mother you can find some excuse to pass up her invitation to dinner if you think going would merely prove to him further that you must see him. As to the movie with her and her son, I believe I'd manage to pass that up, too. Or if you like her very much just for herself, you might suggest a movie at some hour when you know he wouldn't be apt to be around. As to being sure the boy likes you, I'd say he does like you, but how much can be determined by how much of your society he craves.

Dear Martha Carr:

IT SEEMS TO ME that teen age girls are always asking how to become more beautiful or glamorous, what about lipstick, how about this and that. Being a boy of the age to date these teen-agers I would like to put in my say. Why can't you girls, at least till you're 18, be content to be your natural selves without trying to ape the glamour gals? Boys like you just the way you are—little make-up, sweaters, bobby sox, skirts of reasonable length. You have all the rest of your lives to doll up, why not be yourselves and just good fun for a few more years? American girls are supposed to be noted for their naturalness. You girls are wrecking the picture when at 15 you parade around in spiked heels, too short skirts, heavy makeup and long painted nails, and a pompadour that looks as if it might fall down over your eyes any minute. You are always worrying about how to be popular. Just be yourselves, drop this artificial stuff. That's the answer.

MALE ON-LOOKER.

IN ANSWER TO "B.C.": You wouldn't want all the other women to wonder why on earth you picked such a terrible looking person would you? If they look at your husband admiringly don't allow yourself to be jealous. Apparently he does nothing to encourage them and says he loves only you. Jealousy implies a doubt of yourself, or your own inability to hold your husband's love. If you are keeping yourself and your home attractive, are a good companion to your husband you needn't worry about the foolishness of other women, they won't prove any competition for you.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

TO THE question, "Is it proper when a man writes his return address on an envelope to use 'Mr.' before his name?" the answer is no, because it is unnecessary. When no further information is given, it is taken for granted that John Smith is Mister. If he is "The Reverend . . ." or "The Honorable . . ." or "Dr. . . ." or if he has a military title, he, of course, should prefix this title. He also should prefix it to his full name, typewritten beneath his signature at the end of the letter.

There is one exception when a man must put "Mr." before his name. This is when his name is Leslie, Shirley or any other name that is borne by both men and women.

DEAR MRS. POST: I am going to be a bride for the second time. I would like to wear all white—that is, a white suit, shoes, hat and accessories. What about my stockings? Could they be white, too?

Answer: Certainly, if you prefer them, although it seems to me that white stockings with everyday clothes suggests mourning. In any case—with the exception of orange blossoms and a bridal veil and white satin dress with a long train—you may, at your second wedding, wear whatever you please.

THE St. Louis fashion creators who have been setting the pace for youthful styles throughout the nation are going in for curves. They're quit thinking in terms of straight lines which make for wide, straight shoulders and a certain boyish emphasis to silhouettes. Instead, they are rounding off the corners with the result that their new fall collections, launched to the retail trade today, have a very soft and feminine accent.

Getting this new line together has been a bit of a struggle. Not only fabric restrictions have caused a real bother, but last-minute interpretations of certain WPA limitations orders have created havoc in this market as well as elsewhere. There was the dolman sleeve trouble, for example, which made it necessary to check deep-armhole dresses to see that the WPA issued its ultimatum. With style trends going toward deep armholes, designers naturally were inclined to stress this feature, and it was after the lines were practically completed that the WPA issued its ultimatum that the dolman was illegal and issued a statement as to what constitutes a dolman.

St. Louis designers have gained a reputation for a clever slant to youthful styles so luckily they had, in most cases, launched the deep armhole theme with sufficient modification that the actual dolman types were few and far between. A little cutting here and there to separate the sleeve portion of the dress from the body of the bodice, and a shortening of the underarm seam proved sufficient for all styles to come within the law.

Shoulders, even more than armholes, are the focal point of interest in the youthful fashions for which St. Louis has become famous. The rounded look is all-important in contrast to the T-square silhouette of the past seasons. This is achieved by capelet shoulders, yokes, clever cutting and manipulation of fabrics, and the handling of shoulder padding. Along with this curved shoulder treatment goes a general impression that curves have returned to fashion—an impression created by a full look to skirts and the insistence upon tiny waistlines. Hips get attention because of draped peplums and bustle-like treatments. There is considerable back interest brought about not only by bustle bows but slight drapery and button trimming.

There is a dressier aspect to the fashions which seems to go with the softer silhouette. Trimming is reduced to a minimum on most of the dresses, while fabric, silhouette and workmanship are given the spotlight. We are told that the young girls, for whom most of the St. Louis clothes are made, like simple types rather than fussy ones, so even though the clothes have a dressy appearance because of the way the fabrics have been handled, there are no surplus gree-gaws.

Contract Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

UNDER some circumstances a finesse is a luxury that no player can afford. Today's deal documents this point. South, dealer.

North-South vulnerable.

The bidding:
South / West / North / East
1 spade / 2 hearts / 2 no-trump / 3 clubs
3 spades / Pass / 4 spades / Pass
Pass / Pass

South's free rebid was quite a stretch in view of the lightness of his original opening, but there was nothing wrong with the final contract. Even if West had hit upon the inspired opening lead of the king and another diamond, ten tricks still would have been there for South.

Actually, West led the heart king. The ace won and declarer immediately finessed for the queen of trumps. West won, and feeling sure that his partner must have the diamond ace since his clubs had been anything but solid, shifted to the king and eight of diamonds. West ruffed East's diamond's return, then cashed a heart for the second undertrick.

South did not cover himself with glory in this deal. The trump finesse was both dangerous and (more important) unnecessary. South could well afford to lose a trump trick, but he could not afford the loss of time that would be involved in a losing finesse. The markedly correct plan was to cash the two top trumps, leaving the queen at large, then to knock out the ace and king of diamonds. Nothing could upset this simple campaign except a bad break in the diamonds, and mathematically it was far more likely that trumps would break 3-2 than that the queen was on side.

My Neighbor Says

The greenish color that sometimes forms around a hard-cooked egg yolk can be prevented if eggs are fresh and if cooked eggs are chilled at once in cold water. Egg shells come off easier if removed as soon as the eggs are cold.
